FASCISTS TRY TO SAVE 2,000 REBEL TROOPS

International Brigade Holds —Wide Nazi Spy Organization Claimed.

ROME. (UP). It was reported semi-officially that the Italian embassy in Madrid had been sacked and destroyed.

MADRID. (AP). Fascist shock troops fought a futile, all-morning battle to rescue 2,000 comrades, marooned by government troops in the huge hospital clinico in University city.

An international brigade surrounding what once was one of Europe's finest hospitals held its ground, altho a flank attack by the insurgents seemed for a time to be menacing the first houses of interior Madrid.

Thirty fascist bombers and pursuit planes bombarded the University city defenders and long range guns dropped shells in the center of Madrid.

Twelve government pursuit planes patrolled the city after three insurgent planes had machine-gunned militiamen at the northwestern barricades of Madrid.

An empty cartridge case from one of the planes fell thru the glass roof of a passage-way between the garage and the chauffeurs' quarters of the United States embassy

Within the capital, the government ordered families refuged in subway stations to evacuate because of the "awful" sanitary conditions.

At Cartagena, police semi-officially reported the discovery of a wide nazi espionage and propaganda organization. It was at this port that the government cruiser Miguel De Cervates was disabled Sunday by explosions which the government has laid, by pointed inference, to German submarines.

Reports said "interesting documents" had been discovered at the German consulate at Cartagena and set to Valencia for government inspection.

The newspaper Claridad meanwhile said militiamen who seized and closed the former German embassy here Tuesday had found a large night signaling apparatus

LYTLE COMPANY LOW POWER LINE BIDDER

Lancaster District to Cut Costs by Using Copper Weld in Places.

C. F. Lytle Construction company of Sioux City was low bidder on 35¼ miles of electrical transmission lines to be constructed by the Lancaster County Rural Public Power district. The firm bid $264,750 but the board's decision to use solid copper conductors on main transmission lines and copper weld on branch lines will reduce the bid to $260,623. Chief Engineer Toman said the low bid was under the engineer's estimate by approximately $40,000.

Federal Engineering & Construction company of Kansas City was second low with $266,011 and the Ulen Contracting corporation of Lebanon, Ind., third with $272,724. The board of directors approved all three bids and forwarded them to the REA at Washington for final decision. Eight bids were submitted.

Toman said 788 contracts have been signed by farmers in western Lancaster county. He anticipates a total of 915 customers when the $396,000 project is started. Regulations require commencement of work within 45 days More than 100 men will be employed. Bids for a power substation and meters will be opened later.

TEXAS CENTENNIAL CLOSING

Attendance at Dallas Nears 6,500,000 Mark.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP). Attendance at the Texas centennial exposition neared 6,500,000, five days before the end of its six-months run. The gates will close at midnight Sunday. Summing up "intangible benefits," Harry A. Olmsted, director general of the $25,000,000 exposition, said "eastern and northern people, expecting to find the wild, rude west depicted as they envisioned it, find instead great thriving cities...The entire southwest will benefit from this revision of conception."

TAKOMA PARK, Md. (AP). The foreign mission board of Seventh Day Adventists announced that $3,405,437 had been appropriated for 1937 missionary work abroad and among Negroes and foreign speaking persons in North America.

FURLOUGH FOR PRISONERS

Eight City Jail Inmates Are Released on Honor.

Eight inmates of the city jail are listed as beneficiaries under Mayor Bryan's edict calling for a citywide Thanksgiving. These men will leave the jail at 8 p. m. Wednesday on their promises to return at 8 a. m. Friday to complete their sentences. They are placed on their honor. The order does not include transients or persons held for other authorities. There are no women prisoners at this time.

Several of those to participate in the Thanksgiving order are "in" for too freely imbibing from the cup and flowing bowl. The mayor issues to them a warning. He asks that they yield not to temptation and harken not to Tom and Jerry and other despoilers of mental equalibrium.

"This furlough policy is for the purpose of giving the forgotten man an opportunity to be thankful on this day of Thanksgiving," said the mayor. "It will give opportunity for him to spend the day with his family and friends. They will return to jail Friday morning."

CITY READY TO GREET BIGGEST OF GATHERINGS

Record Throng of All Local History Predicted for Friday Pageant.

Parking along So. 15th, K to N, both sides, will be prohibited Friday because of formation there of the big Christmas pageant. Parking is also prohibited along N, 15th to 16th and at the four corners of 12th and O because of the line of march.

Lincoln is prepared to receive on Friday the greatest street throng of local history with Santa Claus and his grandest of pageants furnishing the drawing power. This monster community enterprise, third of its sort, bigger and better than its predecessors, inaugurates the holiday season. More than a mile of festal parade with 52 outstanding units, smartly decorated floats, seven bands and about 1,000 costumed participants. The big parade of Friday climaxes weeks and months of effort on the part of an army of artists and workers. This record-shattering festival will make Lincoln the traffic center of the universe. Reservations are pouring in from far and near.

The original estimate of perhaps a 100-mile radius already is fallen. They are coming from twice that distance with cities and towns thruout the southeast territory and beyond to be liberally represented. Lincoln is host to her neighboring municipalities and the spirit of friendliness and co-operation is far-reaching. The drawing power of this beautiful festival has exceeded every expectation.

"The parent of every child living within a radius of 100 miles or more owes a duty to those children to have them in Lincoln Friday," said Mayor Bryan. "Children thruout southeastern Nebraska have a right to see and enjoy this elaborate pageant prepared for them. They will see their beloved story book characters recreated in life size and actually alive. The Lincoln Recreation board, the WPA, NYA and other organizations have given long days and weeks

RUSSIA'S NEW CONSTITUTION TO FIGHT FASCISM

Stalin Addresses All-Nation Congress—Move Toward Democracy.

MOSCOW. (AP). Joseph Stalin approved a separate ministry of munitions in the soviet cabinet to speed up military defensive preparations in a speech before the eighth all-union congress of soviets.

MOSCOW. (UP). Russia's new constitution, creating effective parliamentary rule, will be an important anti-fascist act and afford moral support to all those now struggling against fascism and for democracy, Josef V. Stalin declared. He addressed the all-union congress of the soviets in the Kremlin, presenting the new constitution to them for ratification. He expressed confidence that the congress would adopt the new "democratic socialist constitution" in a few days.

The constitution is not only of the greatest importance in the soviet union, he said, but is also internationally significant, as it is a prototype which can also be created in other countries.

MOSCOW. (UP). Stalin was given a four-minute ovation by the 2,500 delegates when he arose to speak.

Free speech, religious freedom and protection from arrest without due process of law are guaranteed in the document. It makes work with adequate pay the right, as well as the duty, of every able-bodied citizen, and grants equal rights to women.

The new constitution will be the first voluntary relinquishment of his authority altho the document is so phrased that he can retain control for many years to come while soviet citizens learn to govern themselves.

A bicameral legislative body, in which all members will be elected, will henceforth represent the will of the Russian people, the franchise having been extended in the new constitution to all citizens more than 18 years old.

One house will be called the council of the union. It will be composed of deputies elected on a basis of one to each 300,000 population. The other house, known as the council of nationalities, will be composed of deputies appointed by the supreme councils of the various republics and autonomous provinces. Each house will have equal authority.

The new constitution also gives the right to own private property—personal and real-to all citizens, who henceforth also may conduct private business subject to clauses which restrict the exploitation of workers. They may own small farms and homes, the constitution providing against "large" estates.

SEPARATE MAN FROM DEAD SIAMESE TWIN

Doctors Believe Simplico Godiono Has an Excellent Chance to Survive.

NEW YORK. (UP). In the glaring white intensely silent operating room of York hospital early Wednesday a surgeon, assisted by four doctors, separated a dead human body from a living one. They had been joined by a band of cartilage at the base of the spine since birth—for 28 years.

The operation was imperative and no one knew it more than Simplicio Godino whose black eyes rolled in fright in his white face as he was wheeled under the operating lights.

On the stretcher hip to hip shoulder to shoulder, joined by a cord the diameter of a doubled fist, as nature had ordained that they should live, was the inert, sagging body of his Siamese twin, Lucio, whose eyes were closed in death.

Lucio slipped into the borderland at 6 p. m Tuesday and at 11:40 p. m. succumbed to lobar pneumonia. For ten days the well Simplicio had been an involuntary patient, fretting, bored, wishing for his brother's hasty recovery.

BLAME TEACHER LOSS ON CUT IN SALARIES

Survey Shows 18 Men Have Left University Nebraska Since 1932.

Eighteen educators, many of them nationally known, have resigned or taken leaves of absence from the University of Nebraska since 1932, a survey Wednesday revealed. The budget request submitted Tuesday at Tax Commissioner Smith by L. E. Gunderson, finance secretary, and signed by Earl line, president of the board of regents, places part of the blame for the loss on slashed appropriations in the past.

Reviewing the economies made during the past few years, the recommendation states. "It was necessary to reduce salaries that were already too low in comparison with like state universities The personnel accepted the cuts graciously, with an under-

MOVEMENTS TO END LABOR WARFARE GAIN

Convention Passes Resolution Avoiding Scottsboro Case Protest.

TAMPA, Fla. (UP). The American Federation of Labor campaign to end internal warfare with the John Lewis committee for industrial organization gathered strength as moves for a settlement were advanced at the 56th annual convention.

While the convention hotly debated and passed a resolutions committee report avoiding a protest in the Scottsboro case, private conversations designed to end the labor rift were pressed by George L. Harrison, chairman of the federation's peace committee.

The convention worked to clean up its routine business and quit Friday.

The convention referred to its executive council a resolution proposing broadening the social security act to:

1. Include all jobless workers
2. Provide payments thruout the period of unemployment.
3. Finance the measure by taxes on incomes of more than $5,000.

The convention's action was intended to keep the A. F. of L's. hands off such plans for revision of the social security act.

The convention approved a series of resolutions including:

Opposition to use of non-civil service employes in the postal service except during emergencies.

Urging thru enforcement of fair labor policies of the post office in all government departments.

Placing administration of the civil service retirement act in the hands of an independent establishment responsible only to the president.

A 30 year optional retirement act and a widows annuity for government employes

Higher standards for government employes.

Condemnation of use of one-man street cars in Washington, D. C., as "unecessary and dangerous and as extending a policy of adding to unemployment"

The convention ordered the council to work for legislation to prevent employers from having any weapons for "the so-called protection of property" unless such arms were authorized by local officials and made a matter of public record.

TRI-COUNTY HAS NEW APPLICATION FOR WATER RIGHT

Now Asking for Its Use Wholly Within the Platte River Watershed.

The Central Nebraska public power and irrigation district (Tri-County) Wednesday filed with the state engineer two amended applications for water rights in the Platte river valley.

The district asked for permission to store 2,000,000 acre feet of water in the $11,375,000 reservoir which it proposes to build on the North Platte river at Keystone, and for permission to use 1,500 second feet of water for three power plants.

The district did not file amended applications for direct flow rights which would permit it to irrigate land.

The other two applications were amended in accordance with the decision of the Nebraska supreme court which held that State Engineer Tilley had no authority to permit the Tri-County to use Platte river water for any purpose outside of the Platte watershed.

Tilley to Notify Protestants.

Tilley said he would notify the persons who protested against Tri-County's original applications and who carried the case to the supreme court of the amended filings. Acting on the advice of Atty. Gen. Wright, Tilley said he would confine further hearings on Tri-County applications to the question of whether the water would be used outside of the watershed.

The amended applications were filed by D. W. Kingsley, president of Tri-County. They were virtually the same as the original applications except that, in accordance with the supreme court decision, they specified that the water is to be used within the Platte valley.

The applications stated that the district now has on hand $600,000 to be used in construction of the projects.

The FWA last year alloted Tri-County $10,000,000 in a 55 percent loan and 45 percent grant to construct the power and irrigation system.

Tri-County has until six months after completion of the reservoir

TASK FOR LAWMAKERS ON JOB INSURANCE

G. E. Price Discusses Acts Coming Before Legislature.

G. E Price, Lincoln attorney, who was legal adviser and bill drafter of the senate during the past two sessions of the legislature and who is being consulted by former members relative to legislative matters of the unicameral, said Nebraska employers will pay $2,400,000 tax for 1936 under the federal unemployment insurance. Concerning state legislation he said.

"One of the important matters coming before the legislature convening in January, is the matter of 'unemployment compensation,' or as generally known, 'job insurance.' This legislation is the enactment of a state law to participate in the tax levied by the federal social security act imposing an excise tax upon employers of eight or more. Such legislation is of utmost importance. It demands serious consideration of all who are affected by it.

"Primarily it would appear that only employers of eight or more are affected as they are the only ones upon whom the federal law imposes a tax. The fact is that all employers, all wage-earners and consumers are affected in this legislation.

"Under the federal act none of the revenue derived by the excise tax on employers of eight or more is used for job insurance until the state enacts a law providing

VICTIMS TRAPPED IN WOODEN COACH OF CHICAGO LINE

Heavy Steel Car of North Shore Line Telescopes an L-Car.

CHICAGO. (AP). The worst elevated train wreck in Chicago history left nine dead and at least 65 in hospitals as the explanation of the tragedy was sought by a fourply investigation. The victims were trapped in a wooden coach of the Chicago Elevated Lines, 20 feet above street level, when a 90,000 pound steel car of the North Shore Line telescoped it. The heavy car plowed two thirds of the lighter car's length like the piston of a valve, breaking out the wood coach sides.

Bernard J. Fallon, general manager of the "L" lines, announced the belief, after a night and morning of investigation, that it was due to "man failure, or the human element, rather than to any defect in equipment."

Key figure of the investigations was Van R. Grooms, 36, motorman of the North Shore train. Grooms, who was injured and, doctors said, is "in an overwrought mental condition," was in technical custody in a hospital.

Deputy Coroner James J. Whalen quoted Grooms as saying "the lights on the 'L' train were so dim I couldn't see them until I saw the car itself. I put on my brakes but it was too late to stop."

Four Probes Opened.

Both railway companies, the coroner and the fire department launched investigations. First official account was to come at an inquest into the nine deaths. Doctors feared the injuries sustained by some of the 65 under their care were so severe that the death toll might rise.

Preliminary stages of the investigation revealed that wooden coaches such as the one involved Tuesday night are commonly used on the "L" line. Fallon, general manager, said two out of three cars are this type.

Firemen swarmed up extension ladders from the alley. They hacked at the splintered wood and lifted out the injured. Some broke off the seat backs in the demolished car and used them as impro-

STATE BALKED IN GETTING WPA FUNDS

Governor Finds No Money Available Until the Next Meeting of Congress.

Gov. Cochran asked Washington WPA officials by telephone to boost Nebraska's work quota from 15,000 to 19,000 persons, but learned this will be impossible until congress meets in January.

The governor said he requested the increase to take care of 4,000 drouth stricken farmers not now on the regular WPA rolls. Asst. Adm. Aubrey Williams, however, informed him no money would be available until further appropriations were made.

The Nebraska situation is different from conditions elsewhere, Cochran told Williams, because the state is largely agricultural and was hard hit by the drouth. Even other midwestern agricultural states, such as Iowa and Missouri, he said, are in better shape because they have more industries which can reflect "improved conditions."

The relief problem is hindered in Nebraska, Cochran added, because of a small amount of money available for that purpose in the state assistance fund.

Effective Dec. 15, the Nebraska WPA announced it will cut the working personnel in half to the 15,000 figure.

The governor said the WPA has 4,000 drouth farmers on jobs in addition to the quota of 15,000 regular jobs, but the farmers are slated to be transferred to the resettlement administration for relief. He wanted the 4,000 jobs added to the

by Thomas E. Holt

No wonder the flare-trousered, bolstered, broad-hatted caballero riding beside her felt himself forgetting the precepts of civilization. No wonder Don Fernando thought of swooping toward her, lifting her from her saddle, throwing her across his knees, and galloping madly off into the hills of Andalusia—or San Diego county.

And the Senorita Rose was amiability itself. Amiable to the point where she seemed to invite from Don Fernando the very action of which his hot mind had been dreaming. To substitute truth for rhetoric, Rose flirted outrageously with Fernando. Playing her part, perhaps—the part of the Spanish ballerina whose profession it was to flirt, and thereby to invite the little sudden showers of silver to fall about her feet when the dance was done.

And, in perfect part, it was all done with the eyes.

As far as eyes are concerned, Rose Delane, American, had nothing to learn from Spain. Nor has any woman, for that matter—who has the eyes to use. But eyes are rare.

So Don Fernando rode to San Feliz as in a dream; and Rose Delane laughed and chatted and enthralled him with her eyes—until Don Fernando told himself it was no dream, but reality, and that this night would see her promise to marry him.

Were one philosopher enough, one might devote a good many pages to telling what was going on, and what had been going on, in Rose's head. But perhaps it will be sufficiently understood if it is said that Rose was piqued. Piqued—meaning that Shane O'Hara having refused to attend the fiesta with her, she was going to get at least twice as much attention from Don Fernando as she otherwise would have desired. Perhaps more.

This is feminine arithmetic.

In feminine arithmetic, a subtraction of one figure from another results in an increased sum. Two from four leaves six.

The attitude of the Rose of Soledad toward Shane O'Hara, late of Baltimore, would also—were one a philosopher—stand quite a lot of explaining. But surely the true philosopher's philosophy warns him not to try to analyze the feminine heart. That is where philosophy ends. Wherefore it were better to say that Rose Delane was half in love with Shane O'Hara, and three-fourths pledged to Don Fernando—which included acceptance of the idea of becoming his wife—and that consequently she understood herself even less than a male philosopher might have understood her. Certainly Don Fernando was the perfect caballero, and would no doubt make an excellent husband. And if Shane O'Hara thought that he could calmly say no, when a girl asked him to take her to the fiesta, and not have a reckoning to follow—even if somebody else had to pay for it—why, Shane O'Hara was well mistaken.

Besides, she didn't care a hoot about Shane O'Hara. How could she? She had known him but three or four days. A week ago he hadn't existed.

So the Senorita Rose flirted with Don Fernando—the road was half an hour long—the night was yet young—and feminine youth demanded worship.

It received it.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

Don Fernando assumed a most loverlike attitude, and she permitted it, encouraged it. Whereupon little yellow lightnings began to grow in the sloe-eyes of Don Fernando, and he became exultant. Rose was so gay, so inviting, so—so complaisant, that he even dared to seize her in his arms in a dark nook, and kiss her.

For a suspended moment after that event he steeled himself for rebuff. But instead of that—and to his real relief, for a man who has plans should not endanger them by undue haste—the girl merely laughed, shrugged her shoulders, and said, "Mal hombre." To be called a bad man, in that tone of voice, was no reproof.

It was not until the few minutes immediately preceding Don Fernando's assault upon her lips that Rose had realized a fact—a fact which made that kiss possible.

She realized that all evening she had been expecting to see Shane O'Hara. Had watched for his face among the throng. Had acquitted his greeting. Even the he had denied the intentions of attending the fiesta, she had expected him.

Never before, so far as she could recall, had she been denied by a young man in this summary manner. And it was not until the night was half gone that she realized she hadn't actually believed that Shane would not come to the fiesta.

This knowledge shamed her, annoyed her, emboldened her to permit the attentions of Don Fernando. Even to the kiss.

Having granted him that much, she proceeded to spend the remainder of the fiesta period in making him supremely miserable, to even the score between her and Shane O'Hara. Which is feminine justice. Or some more feminine arithmetic. Three plus three equals four.

So sudden was her change from the receptive to the defensive mood that Don Fernando was at first amazed, then bewildered, then chagrinned and at last angered. Was she playing with him? Did the little cat think she could run circles around him in this fashion? Laughing at him?

But Don Fernando was no woman's fool. He kept sharp lookout, then, for Shane O'Hara,"

"I haven't seen Mr. O'Hara," he said to Rose. "Have you?"

"No, I'm sorry to say," was the answer he got to his question. "He's a good-looking lad, and I'll bet he can dance like a dream."

"Perhaps I too am unfortunate in his absence," Fernando retaliated. "What's the idea, anyhow? Why do you suddenly get disagreeable. First a kiss—"

This was unfortunately said. The girl turned upon him in a fury. But she uttered no word. Instead, after her eyes had blazed him down, she called to a young man passing. "Ole! Juan; come here!" And when he came, a gay young Spanish gentleman. "Take me for a walk down the street," she commanded. Juan made proud escort. Don Fernando scowled—and did not see the girl again for an hour.

Nor, having at last taken her back to Soledad—long after Don Timoteo and Rose's mother had returned—had later developments smoothed matters. Rose was, if anything, colder than before. He might have been a lackey, instead of her caballero. Surprisingly ungracious; rude even. So that Fernando, as soon as a servant had run up, yawning, to take her horse, had bidden her a short good night and galloped away.

* * * *

Two plus four equals three.

Don Fernando called upon Rose the afternoon following the fiesta—and was told that she had a headache and begged to be excused.

Ten minutes after his departure she rode into the court of Rancho La Paloma, whistled Shane O'Hara from within, and held out a peace offering in the general shape of a pie wrapped in a white cloth.

"That, Mister O'Hara," she said gaily, "is probably the finest apple pie ever baked. Do you like—apple pies?" Her eyes flickered into his.

"I love—apple pies," retorted Shane, narrowing his eyelids as he held her look. "Won't you dismount and—and sit, as they say?"

"Can't do it, brother," replied the girl. "I must be getting back. Work to do. I....I didn't see you at the fiesta," she added, looking elsewhere.

"Why, no, I didn't go. I said—you remember?" And then it dawned upon the man. "You—you really looked for me?"

This was imprudence.

"Certainly not," said Rose. "Didn't you say you weren't going to attend? Why should I look for you?"

"Oh, forgive me," said Shane. "I—misunderstood. I thought—I thought you said you didn't see me. And so—"

"Well, I didn't," averred the girl. "I thought maybe—maybe you'd change your mind."

Here was another hole for him to put his foot in, thought Shane, and was cautious.

"But you must have had a jolly time—anyhow," he suggested.

"Not so good," said Rose. "Not so good." She wheeled her horse. "Don Fernando kissed me, of course. But—What's the matter?"

"Nothing," lied Shane. "Not a thing. Gnat flew in my eye. So... So Don Fernando—Hmph! Like it?"

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

Freaky doubles have a capriciousness all their own. They are the most unpredictable member of the family of bids. A player may take his courage by both hands and whisper a timid "double" more than half expecting the redouble ax to fall on his unprotected neck and, to his surprise and joy, see the contract go down five tricks due to a separatable queen or jack, or singleton in the other defender's hand. Then, as though to offset this undeserved windfall, another double so sound that most banks would loan money on it, turns sour as vinegar. The double in today's hand was of the latter type. The doubler still is shaking his head, more in wonder than in anger.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	2 spades
Pass	3 diam's	Double	3 spades
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

South explained later that he had suspected West's opening spade bid as a psychic. West was known to go in for these bids from time to time. And it was because West sensed South's suspicions that he passed over the two spade bid, realizing that by so doing he would be furthering this suspicion and trapping the opponents to a higher level. He hardly could be blamed for being pleased with himself over his own strategy when the next round gave him the opportunity to double three spades. I must confess that had I been in his place I would have been equally pleased.

West's opening lead, however, was not on a par with his bidding. He should have opened the queen of trumps but, instead, chose the king of hearts. When declarer saw the dummy he realized that, in all probability, West's original bid was far from psychic, and he proceeded to give the hand the play of his life.

He won the opening lead in dummy and immediately ruffed a heart with the spade deuce. He then led to the king of clubs and ruffed dummy's last heart with the three. Next he cashed the ace and queen of clubs and, when East failed to follow on the third round and still did not ruff, the distribution of the hand became crystal clear. The fourth club was ruffed in dummy, while West gnashed his teeth at his helplessness to do other than follow suit. By this time he could see what was coming. Declarer now could count West for a singleton diamond, so he led a diamond from the dummy. West won and could only lead a trump. Declarer won the queen with the ace and exited with his remaining diamond, which West had to ruff. The lack of spades now was punished to hold, declarer following with the four spot, and now West had to lead away from his remaining 10-8 up to declarer's K-9, thus giving declarer the last two tricks. In all, West had been held to three tricks, two trumps and the ace of diamonds, and declarer's apparent five or six losers had virtually melted under perfect handling.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Dealer opened the bidding with one no trump. Next hand (my partner) doubled. Third hand passed, and I held the following: ♠ K 8 6 ♥ A J 7 ♦ 9 6 3 ♣ 8 7 4 2. What should have been my response?

Answer: You should have passed.

M'INTYRE

NEW YORK.—Vaudeville's troupers have about reached the saturation point. For those who have not found a radio niche or a place in pictures there seems nothing left but to roll along on the reminiscent trail. Recalling days when billing at variety's valhalla—The Palace—was top of the world.

There are a few split weeks to play in a scatter of movie houses in the larger cities or perhaps a week in a cabaret floor show. But outside these frugal interludes there's not much left in the way of engagements. But variety folk are valiants who keep chins up.

Almost any evening there will be a group of them at "Ma" Gerson's, a spic little eatery hard by the stage entrance of the Palace. Most are not old but they live in the past—the past of Sweeney and Duffy, Bert Fitzgibbons, Dooley and Sale and the reliable chin piece comic, Art Frank.

Vaudeville was a show world apart. A constant strive for laughs on stage and off. They covered their jolts by mutual ribbing. The Big Hope was to have a home in some Long Island village at the end of the trail when booking offices began to murmur, "Sorry, nothing today."

When one hears of some famous author, financier or artist being a bang-up cook, it's a safe bet that he isn't young. Epicureanism is a blab on age. It's rarely taken up before 40 and mostly around 50. One of the most accomplished literary cuisiners is Bob Davis, the roaming gazeteer. Nothing pleases him more than to collect a lusty crowd of eaters, take to the kitchen and dish up a highly seasoned meal. His biscuits are unexcelled. Ted Saucier, the Waldorf's beaming ballyhooist, is another whose self-cooked dinners have excited exacting gourmets. Julian Street on occasions can also disappear in the kitchen and prepare something to smack the most discriminating lips. Henry Mencken's cuisine has inspired a praising paragraph from Paul Morand. Ring Lardner liked to put on a buckwheat and sausage breakfast, too.

Expatriates who returned from Paris found one of their gastronomic surprises in the query of American waitress: "Would you like more butter?" Two cupfuls of butter are a franc in Paris. Incidentally, the waitress—the type once such a comfortable feature of the country inn—is being revived. A happy waitress maketh a fat restaurant. It's established psychology that the person who puts food on your table can do more for your appetite than all the cocktails, caviar and filet d'anchovie. Many college girls, awaiting the Big Break, are serving as waitresses these days.

TRY THIS WAY TO QUICKLY RELIEVE ECZEMA ITCHING

If your skin is broken out with "fiery" or "weeping" eczema, you want to relieve the intolerable itching and burning as quickly as possible. Resinol Ointment does this and also combats the irritation caused by eczema—its oily base being ideal for penetrating the outer layers of the skin and securing deeper action.

Wash the affected parts with warm water and Resinol Soap. It is especially suited to tender skin—soaps containing too much alkali may irritate. After washing off scales and crusts, pat dry with a soft cloth. Do not rub.

Apply a thin layer of Resinol Ointment, letting it remain for several hours. Apply again liberally at bedtime leaving on all night. The longer Resinol is in contact with the skin, the more good it does.

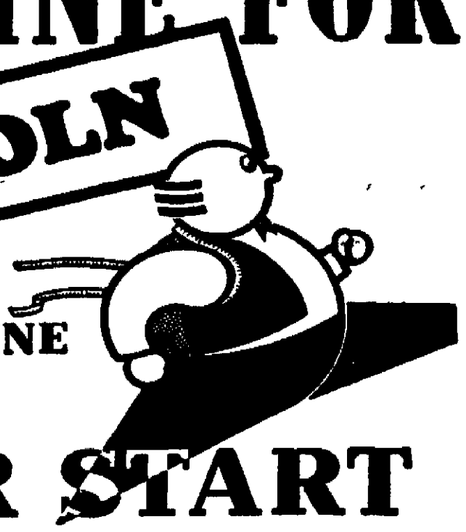
ONLY SKELLY TAILOR-MAKES GASOLINE FOR

LINCOLN



VIRGIN GASOLINE ADDED FOR FASTER START

A PRECEDENT was upset. As always, it was Skelly leading the industry. The old idea that "gasoline should be the same everywhere" was pushed aside when Skelly determined by research that gasoline should be made to fit the weather. Seeing the benefits in faster starting and extra mileage, other refiners attempted to copy Skelly.

Tailored For Communities

Today Skelly is still alone in tailor-making. Only Skelly tailor-makes for each community, at 24 tailoring points where Virgin gasoline is added to refinery gasoline in scientific proportions to fit local weather forecasts.

Virgin—from Gas-Well Gas

Skelly discovered that an amazing gasoline—called "virgin"—pressed from gas-well gas, would speed up starting and pick-up and avoid the waste of slow starting. Skelly Tailors add as much as 38% of virgin to refinery gasoline, tailoring Aromax for changing weather; changing Aromax many times a month.

Only at the Skelly diamond—where you see the Skelly Tailor—can you buy Tailor-Made gasoline. Fill up today and try Tailor-Making. If you can't see a difference, we will gladly give you your money back. You can't lose.

CORA MAE BRIGGS IS RECOGNIZED LEADER

Seward Girl Is the Only 4-H Member to Win National Rural Distinction.

Cora Mae Briggs of Seward was named most outstanding rural leader, while still a 4-H club member, in the United States. She won the title in the national 4-H leadership contest and will receive the Moses trophy for the distinction.

L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H leader at the college of agriculture, received word from Chicago early Wednesday announcing the award.

CORA MAE BRIGGS.

It is the first time any Nebraskan has ever been so recognized and is the highest honor to come to any Nebraska 4-H member or leader. Miss Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Briggs, goes to Chicago late this week to accept the national honor.

Outstanding rural leaders, still 4-H members, from all parts of the United States entered the contest. The Seward girl's victory comes after nearly ten years of club participation. She has worked in more different clubs, led more clubs and secured a higher percentage of finish-up of club members than any other Nebraskan in the history of club work.

In her home community, Miss Briggs is looked up to as a local leader. She not only participates in 4-H club activties but in all other civic movements. Active in getting girls in her county to learn more about improved home practices, Cora Mae has served as local leader of 16 clubs. Forty-one members of her canning clubs in three years have canned 6,676½ quarts of food worth $2,164.63.

The national champion is versatile in her 4-H activities. Not only has she fed out sheep, hogs and beef animals, but she has exhibited clothing, baked and canned foods ducts at county, state and interstate fairs. In 1936 she was one of Nebraska's four representatives in the national 4-H camp in Washington.

She has learned to manage her financial matters successfully. Things she has made in 4-H work or animals fed out have a gross value of $4,386.32.

Not only has Miss Briggs been highly successful in her own 4-H activities but many of her club members have likewise been outstanding. They have been state champions in many different lines. They have canned food, studied weeds, represented Seward county in health and style shows at the state fair, produced gardens and done many other things. Each year she takes part in the state conservation camp at Seward.

Right now she is undertaking a county bird project in all schools. Cora Mae became interested in 4-H work in 1927 when K. C. Fouts, county agricultural agent, visited her community organizing clubs.

Phone Company Anticipates Rural Line Construction.

The railway commission Wednesday granted permission to the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph company to offer metallic service at rates stated at its exchanges at Brownsville, Burr, Swanton, Union, Clatonia and Weeping Water when it becomes necessary, by reason of rural electrification construction, to change from grounded to metallic service. The company was also given authority to change a rate situation in Otoe county whereby a flat rate for added exchange service to business men in Nebraska City, Dunbar and Syracuse in connection with its Otoe exchange will be substituted for the present requirement that a separate phone be installed.

The Northwestern Bell Telephone company was authorized to increase the area in Omaha to which base rates apply so as to give city rates to sections that have developed a demand for increased service. The Diller Telephone company was authorized to continue emergency rate schedules for 1937, and the North Salem Telephone company, located near Dakota City, was authotrized to make a flat yearly rate of $27 for business and $21 for residence service instead of different rates for stockholders and non-stockholders. This is an increase in rates that the company said was necessary in order to get money for replacements, and is subject to 30 days complaint from subscribers.

The application of the Nebraska Central Telephone company for authority to refinance bonded indebtedness was withdrawn for the present to give the company time to make a valuation of its property to support the bond issue.

These formal complaints were dismissed without prejudice for lack of prosecution: D. C. Ranz et al and Laura Carruthers et al against Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph company, relating to rates for beauty shop operators, and George J. Koster against Northern Nebraska and Northwestern Bell Telephone companies, relating to change of service.

Special Menus for Thanksgiving Day Are Planned by Various Institutions

Special Thanksgiving menus and afternoon and evening programs Thursday will give notice at most of the institutions in Lincoln that the day is out of the ordinary. Dinner menus will be centered around various meats from roast pork to the traditional turkey.

BILL FOR CONTROL OF BUSINESS IS PLANNED

Senator O'Mahoney to Present Mechanism Following Labor Resolution.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

WASHINGTON, (Copyright). A comprehensive mechanism to control and regulate some of the principal activities of business corporations is proposed in a bill which Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming expects to see congress enact at its forthcoming session.

The American Federation of Labor, at its convention this week in Tampa, Fla., approved the plan for a federal licensing of businesses, and the O'Mahoney bill in directly in line with the A. F. of L.'s purposes and desires.

The central idea is to require all businesses to take out a federal license or else they will not be permitted to send goods into retail trade or between states.

To get a federal license and to keep one from being revoked, a business must agree to collective bargaining, to establish minimum wages, not to discriminate among union and non-union employes and to follow the guidance of the federal government on the following fundamental principle:

"Rates of pay shall be increased and hours of work shall be reduced in accordance with gains in the productive efficiency of industry, arising from increased mechanization, improvements in technological methods or from other causes, to the end that employes shall have an equitable participation in the output of industry, and that employment and mass-purchasing power may keep pace with industry."

Guide for Employers.

The foregoing principle would be the guide of employers "in arriving at rates of pay, hours of work, and other conditions of employment" and the employers, in following it, "shall exhaust all possibilities of collective bargaining with representatives of recognized organizations of employes."

The federal trade commission is to be authorized to secure "from licenses involved all relevant and detailed data as to production cost, prices and profits."

The businesses of the country, moreover, are to be subject to investigation if "any strike, lockout or other labor dispute" occurs and "if the commission shall find that such business is at fault" and has caused the police or constabulary "to protect or escort strike-breakers, it shall be the duty of the commission immediately to revoke the license of such business."

All stockholders are to have an equal right to vote and no bonuses can be paid except by vote of stockholders and all directors or officers must be bona fide owners of stock in the corporations they manage.

Senator O'Mahoney feels that the measure should have the support of business, and that, if a law of the kind he has drafted is not held constitutional, an amendment to the federal constitution to accomplish the same object is an inevitable sequel.

The Wyoming senator does not hold any brief for the exact phraseology of his draft and concedes that changes will be made as the matter goes under full debate and discussion.

Taft Opposed Compulsion.

It is interesting to note that President Taft opposed compulsory federal licensing but did recommend to congress a voluntary incorporation bill in 1910. Some of its features are reproduced in part in the O'Mahoney bill. President Wilson made a brief reference to federal incorporation in his message to congress in 1919.

In the old days, federal incorporation was looked upon as a device to permit a more flexible operation of the anti-trust laws and, indeed, on this basis Mr. Taft urged it.

Mr. Wilson, however, thought it might serve to regulate corporate profits in certain businesses just as in the case of utilities.

It all depends, therefore, not merely on what is the intent behind such a bill, but what is its possible scope of application.

Labor wants the bill to get the NRA revived.

Several "brain trusters" hereabouts want it as a means of regulating capitalism and particularly to exercise a control over businesses, large and small, that have already issued their securities and hence cannot be reached by the SEC, especially if their securities are closely held and not traded in on stock exchanges.

There are doubts about the constitutionality of these proposals, but Senator O'Mahoney was quoted this week as believing the supreme court of the United States follows the election returns.

It is Mr. O'Mahoney's belief that his bill will define by law certain points to which business must conform and that, in all other respects, business will be free to operate as it wills.

The extent to which the measure, which it is believed has President Roosevelt's support in principle, does give business a chance to manage its own affairs and the extent to which every business —with the exception of newspapers, church and educational enterprises—are put under the control of a government commission depends on how the bill, if enacted into law, will be interpreted by the federal trade commission and later the courts.

OCTOBER FIRE REPORTS.

In comparison with the month of September, there was a decrease in the number of fires for October, 179 for September and 141 for October, according to State Fire Marshal Davis. The value of the property involved in October firses was $1,527,260, carrying insurance to the amount of $1,156,775.

There were 35 rural fires reported by fire chiefs, with a loss of $59,663, an average loss per fire of $1,705. Fifty-nine percent of the value of the farm property was covered by insurance and the loss equaled 52 percent of the value.

GERMANY AND JAPAN CONCLUDE AGREEMENT

Five Year Pact Links Countries in Fight on Communism.

BERLIN, (UP). Germany and Japan have concluded an anti-communism agreement, it was officially announced Wednesday. An official communique said that an introduction to the agreement states:

"In view of the fact that the aim of the communist international is to disintegrate and subject to force all existing states by all means available, and in the conviction that toleration of the work of the communist international in their internal affirs endangers not only the internal peace nd social welfare of nations but also constitutes a menace to world peace on the whole, and in a desire to co-operate against the work of the communist interntional, the German and Japanese governments have concluded the following agreement."

Article 1 of the agreement, the communique said, provided for exchange of information between the German and Japanese governments regarding the work of the communist international.

Article 2 invites other states menaced by communism to take common measures for protection.

Article 3, the communique said, fixes the term of the agreement at five years, after which signatory governments would consult regarding further co-operation.

A supplement to the agreement states that German and Japanese authorities will take the harshest measures within their existing laws against those "at home or abroad directly or indirectly acting in the interests of the communist international or favoring its work of destruction."

The agreement, it was announced, was most brief, consisting only of three articles and supplements.

One supplementary agreement stipulates that the Japanese and German governments will co-operate closely in providing information and efrecting propaganda measures to combat the communist international. A permanent committee is to be established to discuss and propose necessary measures for action by the signatory governments.

The agreement, it was said, was directed against the communist international which is the supreme world communist organization with headquarters at Moscow. It has no official connection with the Russian government.

RETRIAL OF GROCER NORRIS CONSIDERED

Votava Says He Has Submitted the Question to Atty. Gen. Cummings.

OMAHA, (AP). U. S. Dist. Atty. Joseph T. Votava of Omaha, said he has submitted the question of retrial of Grocer George W. Norris on prejury charges to the attorney general at Washington.

Grocer Norris appealed the decision of the Eight district court of appeals. Last week the circuit court reversed the decision and remanded the case to the district court, Judge C. B. Faris, who wrote the circuit court's opinion, termed sordid political trickery."

The circuit court said the evidence showed Grocer Norris testified on Sept. 22, 1930, before the investigating committee he received no financial aid in his attempted filing and had not been promised such aid, but the next day defendant appeared voluntarily to testify he received $50, later repaid by himself. The circuit court ruled the district judge should have instructed the jury to consider if the defendant perjured himself in view of his voluntary appearance to correct his previous testimony. In this connection, the circuit court laid down the rule that a witness has the right to correct false testimony until the case is closed, regardless of whether the original testimony was unintentional or intentional. Votava said he has suggested to the attorney general an appeal to the supreme court of the United States from this section of the circuit court's decision. He said the United States' courts have never definitely ruled on this question.

"Dedicated to the people of Nebraska and to the development of the resources of the state."—Sept. 7, 1867

"There is no place like Nebraska"

China is said to be strengthened for a war on its invaders. China will probably be greatly weakened after the war, if it develops.

King Edward's family does not share his enthusiasm for Wallie Simpson. Members are steeped in the more or less confining traditions of an older England and do not share the liberal opinions of the present monarch. They entertain very pronounced ideas on divorce and on the dignity of the crown and Brother Edward, the precedent breaker, is a cause of worry.

The A. F. of L. had a flaying bee at its convention and took the hide off the communists and fascists alike. Neither, the federation delegates were wise enough to see, represents the ideal system for labor. In spite of the discontent in labor's ranks a representative democracy such as we have now holds out the most hope and the delegates are apparently able to see that. They are choosing the middle path, the democratic road between the two extremes. The wisdom of that choice is obvious to all who appreciate a degree of freedom.

The Spanish loyal forces have seized and locked two embassies in Madrid, that of the Germans and that of the Italians. They can scarcely be blamed for this action now. Both of these countries have already recognized the rebel government. They have more or less openly supported the rebels all along. The loyal forces kept their hands off this property while Italy and Germany were aiding the rebels. But now that these countries have recognized the rebel government they no longer feel any restraints and have closed down these sources of rebel information.

Colonel Lindbergh was not seen by the public eye for a day or two and there was much speculation. Had the colonel been lost? Where had he flown and why had he not been reported. Just when uneasiness began to spread over England and Ireland and reach across the sea to this country reassuring word, if not explicit information, comes from his home. The statement is merely made that the colonel is safe and that there is no cause to worry. This is not the first time Colonel Lindbergh has dropped out of sight. He seems to enjoy getting away from the public, hiding himself away and missing the reporters who too often place his name on the front page without adequate reason. Try as he may Lindbergh cannot avoid publicity.

The French are determined to do something about the war debts. The chamber of deputies has moved to renew negotiations with the United States. The French probably feel that the United States has reached the point where anything will be acceptable. In that they are not far wrong. It was hard to believe at first that the French would default after the debt had been scaled down to amount only to interest payments over some 60 years. Now we are convinced that the French would not only default but would also remain in default indefinitely unless other concessions are made. The French may be able to get further liberal concessions now, even tho we resent being forced into such concessions after having acted so generously in the past.

The shocking railway tragedy reported from Chicago causes wonderment. A following train crashed into the train ahead killing nine persons and injuring 65. The leading train had stopped at a signal and the train following crashed into the heavily loaded coaches ahead. Why, in this day of mechanical progress cannot trains on such short lines where heavy traffic is carried be protected by automatic devices that will make such collisions impossible? Human lives should not be exposed to preventable menace. On many miles of trackage in this country railway trains are protected against such accidents. Why should a carrier in a big city be permitted to expose passengers to such dangers? There may be good reasons and if there are they should be forthcoming.

THANKSGIVING.

Looking out over a world, the major portion of whose peoples are perturbed either by fears of war or further loss of liberties, those who gather around festal boards in the United States this year will find many things to be thankful for. The people of this nation have just emerged from political warfare that at times flared into verbal violence just as they had emerged from previous political campaigns, with tempers restored and a calm acquiescence in a result that was displeasing to 40 percent of those who took part in the balloting. Out of a conflict of ideas and policies that in many instances were in direct opposition, there has come an era of good feeling that should augur well for the future. Our democracy has again proved its ability to make decisions and to accept them with equanimity and without disturbance.

No cloud of war appears upon the horizon of the nation. Its relations with foreign countries remain satisfactory. We may have lost part of our popularity because we continue to refuse to finance preparations for war by other nations, but we retain our own self respect. Our one hope is that we shall not be drawn into the conflict now nearing in Europe and possibly in Asia, and we have taken every possible precaution against entanglement. We have the advantage of other nations in that our rulers have no ambitions for conquest and no lust for power that bids them extend the mailed fist instead of the warm hand of the good neighbor.

The people of the United States have reason to be thankful because the business of the nation is definitely out of the depression woods. However men may disagree as to the underlying causes, recovery is here. The volume of manufactures and of trading is steadily increasing. This has brought with it more and more employment. Wages are being increased, purchasing power is being added to, and the wealth and income of the nation is advancing. We have not solved all of our economic problems but we have good reason to believe we have profited by the lessons of the past and that our mistakes will not be repeated.

The promise is now made that the budget will be balanced within 18 months. With that accomplished fears of inflation should subside. Prices will increase, but along with that goes added purchasing power which rests upon the operation of natural forces rather than upon expenditures from the public purse. We have much of the wreckage of the depression left, but it is rapidly being cleared away.

With hope restored fears vanish. For the blessings received men should enter upon the celebration of our annual festival with a thankful and contrite spirit.

NO FURTHER DELAY.

The request for a postponement of the deadline for state compliance with the federal unemployment insurance law has run into difficulties. Chairman Winant has refused to consider the request. And since the president is away on a vacation, it will not be possible to persuade him to change his mind now. Once the deadline is passed, it will take an act of congress to alter the legislation to permit the 33 states on the outside to come in out of the cold.

This legislation has been bungled in several ways. Passed too late for legislatures to act in conformity with it the law is more of a reward to the dozen states which have unemployment insurance legislation than it is an inducement for states to come in under federal shelter. Had the states known that the federal government would permit deduction of 90 percent of the payments to the federal treasury for the state plan and had they known that payment would become compulsory for all they would have scurried for this shelter. But most legislatures had adjourned before this legislation took shape and most of them will not convene again until after the Dec. 31 deadline.

Obviously this legislation was poorly planned. It did not make any allowance for the operation of the machinery of government in the various states. A postponement of the deadline would correct the defect. But there is no prospect of such postponement even tho governors of 33 states have pleaded for it.

The question now becomes one of whether to call a special session of the legislature or take a chance on congress extending the period for entry into the federal plan. A short extension is all that is needed since most legislatures convene in January.

Many of the governors concerned Gov. Cochran among them, seem to dislike the idea of a hurried special session so late in the year. The cost would be considerable, and if congress did relent later, would be in vain. Since 33 states are on the outside their governors feel that they have enough influence to cause congress to grant an extension. Many of them will refrain from calling special sessions on that assumption.

ABOUT M'GRADY.

Since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration the public has been hearing a lot about Edward F. McGrady, trouble fixer in labor matters. McGrady has not always succeeded in his work, has been subject to much criticism, has been flouted by both labor leaders and employers, but calm or storm he has stuck to his job and seems destined to continue.

Who is McGrady? Those who know him best wonder at the question, but this country has so many prominent men that it is not possible for all to keep up with the coming and goings of important and would be important public service aides.

McGrady began his manhood as a printer's pressman. He became active in local labor matters at Boston. He served a term on the Boston council. He was made an organizer for the pressmen's union and did much work for that organization. He later became a Washington lobbyist for that organization and did such a good job that he became known to almost every member of congress and every prominent man in Washington. He served as a Massachusetts legislator. When Roosevelt went to the white house McGrady was mentioned for secretary of labor but Mrs. Perkins won. Then he was urged as assistant secretary but Secy. Perkins said no. Later he was made a part of the NRA machine, in the labor department. He was pushed forward by Gen. Hugh Johnson and became prominent in the effort to make the NRA popular. Then Secy. Perkins discovered her mistake later and made Mr. McGrady assistant secretary.

Since then McGrady has had strike troubles on his hands. He has gone here and there to pour oil on labor's stormy seas. He has bluffed, cajoled, coaxed and threatened in the effort to promote labor peace and to get the most for the men who work that was possible. He has not always succeeded, but his percentage is high.

Now there is talk about Secy. Perkins retirement. There is always talk of change when a new cabinet is to be formed. McGrady is mentioned as her successor. There are many in labor's ranks, many employers, and many of Mr. Roosevelt's well wishers who hope he will be named. McGrady stands high with the administration, but whether he succeeds in the cabinet job involves politics. Politics may keep McGrady out.

FOOTNOTES.

It is not at all improbable that Diego Rivera will be known to posterity as Five Gun Rivera, in view of the charge made against him in Mexico City where he was lodged in jail after having been captured with five guns on his person. That, on the face of it, is preposterous. What would anyone want with five guns? Even the most murderous characters of the wild west were content with two guns and there are not many who can use one gun effectively.

Rivera is not charged with having fired a single shot. The charge is that he entered a hotel with five pistols. Entering a hotel with five pistols is conduct highly resented by hotel keepers in Mexico, it seems.

Five Gun, he was plain Rivera in those days, was the center of a considerable storm in Rockefeller Center in New York where his murals failed to please the Rockefellers. Rivera is a communist, an outspoken one. He incorporated many of his ideas in his decorations for the center. The Rockefellers disapproved and asked Rivera to make some changes. He refused so he was paid off and his work was destroyed.

As Rivera looks back on it now he has no serious objection altho there were some fiery exchanges at the time. He points out that he was paid and that if the Rockefellers saw fit to destroy the work, that was their business.

Of late Rivera has been working on some frescoes for the decoration of a hotel in Mexico City and again he put his political convictions into his work. After it was completed it contained some barbed shafts directed at officialdom and the management sought to lessen their sting by having them retouched surreptitiously and without Rivera's consent but leaving his signature on the retouched work.

That was an offense no artist could tolerate and Rivera backed by sympathizers marched on the yet uncompleted hotel and forced his way in to view the damage. Rivera's arrest followed.

Rivera is an artist of considerable talent who entertains strong political convictions. He is in revolt against the order prevailing in the United States and in Mexico. His method of expression is thru his art which seems to often fall on a hostile world. The intolerance of those who view his work drives Rivera to intolerance all his own. He cannot remain quiet and reserved when his protest is demolished. Content to protest again and hope that a broadened more enlightened world will develop which will some day view his work with approbation. Instead he must arm himself with five guns and invade a hotel.

So he becomes Five Gun Rivera.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL.

The anticipated shakeup in the railway commission staff will come as a result of a political upset. Private business would not discharge worth while employes because of a change in management, but public business frequently suffers from such changes. If changes are needed they should not await political changes. If they are not needed there is no defensible reason for making them after political administrations have changed. An extension of civil service rules to many departments in government is indicated by such wholesale reorganizations where the inexperienced frequently take the place of the experienced.

Harry Bradley, one of the custodians at the state capitol, with a knowledge acquired by previous incursions into the field at holiday times, contracted recently with the son of a Seward county farmer to supply him with rabbits for Thanksgiving feasts. The young man wanted to know how many, and was told that Bradley would take all he could catch. He now has 50 ready for delivery, and Harry is busy trying to make arrangements with storage warehouses. "I didn't know when I placed the order," he says, "that rabbits were so plentiful. Now I am told there are so many that the farmers are ploughing them in."

Scottsbluff has a baby death mystery. The baby body was found on a dump. Terry Carpenter says the police and peace officers have reached the place where they can go no further in solving it. Terry has a remedy. He would turn the matter over to the women of the community and believes when that is done it will be quickly solved. There is a challenge. Will the women of Scottsbluff accept it. There is nothing in the law to hinder their beginning work at once and placing any evidence found before the proper officers.

A fire in the county jail caused much apprehension but did little damage. There was never danger of trouble with the inmates and the ramshackle structure was not in serious danger altho the loss would not have fallen heavily had the structure burned. It has served its years and should be replaced as soon as finances will permit.

Nebraska has a murder case that will keep Otoe county officials busy for several weeks to come. A man was murdered. His wife, with whom he had had some trouble, is accused of the murder and has been bound over without bail to await trial. The case has enough sordid angles to pack the court room when it comes up for trial.

One active republican candidate for office is of the opinion that while most persons discredit the theory that the personal visit of a presidential candidate has any effect, the trip of Roosevelt to Lincoln was the real cause for the unexpected carrying of the city and county by the democratic presidential ticket. He said that following that visit he noticed an increased enthusiasm and zeal among democratic workers, while republicans showed luke-warm attitudes toward the election. The county committee did not believe there was any possibility of the democrats winning the county until about a week before election day.

Clear skies followed a disheartening dust storm and all Nebraska smiled. Snow fell east and west of Nebraska during the recent weather disturbance. Nebraska got dust.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Q. What states have tried the single-house legislature?

A. Four have had a unicameral legislature. Delaware until 1776; Pennsylvania until 1790; Georgia 1777-1789 and Vermont until 1836. Nebraska's unicameral legislature convenes for the first time in January 1937.

Q. When was the municipal auditorium at Philadelphia built?

A. Its construction dates from Jan. 7, 1929, when ground was broken by Mayor Harry A. Mackey, who also laid the corner-stone Oct. 14 1930. Formal exercises dedicating the auditorium were held Sept. 17, 1931.

Q. When was the first election in the United States?

A. The first election in America was that of delegates to the Virginia assembly in 1619, 12 years after Jamestown was founded. The second was that of John Winthrop to be governor of Massachusetts in 1631.

Q. Why are Twice Told Tales so called?

A. This name was given by Hawthorne to the tales included under that title because some of them had been previously published in the Token and other periodicals.

Q. Who was Josiah Allen's Wife?

A. This was the pseudonym of Marietta Holley, humorist.

MEN AND THINGS.

Seventeen reasons why Tugwell resigned from government service have so far been printed. The most plausible one is that he relied too much upon his drag with the president, and that he tried to go around his bureau chief once too often. We have never yet understood what sort of a fascination he was able to throw around Roosevelt that enabled him to get millions of dollars of tax money to play around with and spend on what Landon succinctly referred to as crackpot schemes. At any rate he will have to spend his own money on his fantasies hereafter.

Economists who have been analyzing the setup and aims of several modern governments say that there is not a new idea in the whole area. Most of the rulers retain their power by promising to keep the people from want all their days, retaining only the right to call them to die when their rulers decide they can use armed force to take what a weaker nation has. This is the old feudal system all over again, the difference being that a central government instead of the ruler or a chief is in charge. The slave system in America guaranteed the same sort of security with no obligation to do battle. Yet we seem to recall that was not at all satisfactory.

We have been somewhat interested in trying to figure out the standards of humor in vogue with the audiences that sit in the rooms from whence emerge radio programs. The other evening we noted that uproarious applause followed a statement by the comedian that a certain lady whom he had met had plaid hair. There may be something about plaid hair—we have never seen any and so cannot say—that would produce a vigorous haw-haw, but we cannot conceive of our risibilities going into action just because somebody mentioned plaid hair. Then again, it may be that plaid hair is just our own personal mind blank spot.

The tip comes from Washington that Secy. Wallace is likely to be the party's nominee for president in 1940. That certainly ought to stimulate the sale of dream books. The idea appears to be that there are no big names outside the cabinet who could be depended upon to carry on the new deal program. This does not speak well for the caliber of the 88 democratic state governors. It has been an axiom of politics for a good many years that the ability to carry a state with a large electoral vote is proof positive of the governor's ability to run the national government. But these are dry times when all signs fail.

The south has been able to secure the removal there of many northern industrial plants because of the low wage level in that section of the country. This spelled ruin for a good many northern communities and left thousands of fairly well-paid workers jobless and in time homeless. Now the labor organizations are moving into the south for the purpose of unionizing workers in the factories to the end that better wages be paid. Men who have traveled in the south have expressed astonishment over the fact that so kindly a people as those which dominate communities in that section show so little concern for children in mills and low wages for everybody. Conditions like those breed a class feeling we have always prayed to be delivered from in this land.

DR. BRADY'S HEALTH TALK.

Immunity Against Pneumonia.

In our times the majority of physicians have ceased to think of pneumonia as an effect of exposure to cold and or wet, tho here and there one still finds a practitioner whose care of the patient implies that he thinks so or whose advice to patients generally begins and ends with the hackneyed instruction 'Keep well under the covers, avoid damp and drafts."

The propensity of old timers and second rate doctors generally for the vague, misleading concept of "lowered resistance" is fatal when applied to pneumonia. Whether the doctor so intends it or not, the layman invariably associates it with the rigors of winter. Slovenly practitioners who are guilty of this sin give moral support to the nostrum mongers whose concoctions purport to "build up resistance" so that the customers can endure exposure'—exposure to rain, wind, sleet, snow, etc., as the nostrum appeals picture so convincingly.

If a physician is honest and sincere he may think and speak of immunity to pneumonia or other respiratory infection, but that is a specific state and there is little to think or say about it, as yet.

For instance, many attempts have been made to confer immunity to infection with the pneumococcus (pneumonia germ) and allied organisms upon groups, such as factory employes, large office staffs, department store employes by injecting each individual with a few doses of bacterin (bacterial "vaccine") early in the season. In some instances this has seemed to lower the morbidity rate from such infections, but in most instances the results have warranted no definite conclusion as to the value of the practice. Personally I question whether it is worth while.

From experimental research in the laboratory some workers have inferred that lack of or deficiency of vitamin A may be accountable for lack of immunity to respiratory infection. From this pure theory has grown the present wide spread use of vitamin A in innumerable forms for the purpose of favoring the development of and maintaing the highest attainable degree of immunity against respiratory infections. Just how efficacious this may be is still undetermined. Candidly, I don't know whether it is of any value. Unfortunately, there are no properly controlled tests of the treatment on human beings.

Generally various other measures or remedies are used along with vitamin A, and one can therefore draw no deductions from individual experiences. I am inclined to believe that vitamin D is more important in developing optional immunity to the cri than vitamin A. But this is merely my conjecture. I take some vitamin D to supplement my ordinary diet daily, I never bother about vitamin A, for I believe many of us get insufficient vitamin D but few of us do not get enough vitamin A in our ordinary diet.

THE PUBLIC MIND.

Thanksgiving.

CERESCO.—If the relief and benefits, caused by the recent landslide, then we may quote what Benjamin Franklin said. He who seeks security thru the surrender of his liberty will lose both, and is America neutral, if it is true that ammunition makers rush across the ocean to sell their death dealing products, how can they prosper with blood stained money. It behooves every one to try to better conditions and try to rise to higher plans of action than causing war. And not being neutral is one step nearer to help our nation to be involved in war.

And now nearing Thanksgiving season we yet as Americans have so much to be thankful for and as our minds turn back to that little band of pilgrims of Christian men and women. Let us not forget our parents who experienced the same fortitude when they settled Nebraska those days are the same as today different problems of course but we need the brave spirit of those pioneers who founded our country with faith and prayer. They could not have accomplished what they did without the guiding hand of God. And today the same Jesus is the light of the world.

MRS. A. G. BEHRENS

Developing a Market

HASTINGS.—An article in the Saturday, Nov. 21 issue of the State Journal entitled 'Says Artichokes Finding No Market.' This heading seems to have been provoked by a statement made at Bridgeport before a group of farmers by A. G. Schlausser of Dearborn, Mich., telling them there was no commercial market for artichokes.

I take it this statement is aimed at the United Artichoke company who are endeavoring to develop an industrial project for the benefit of agriculture in the middlewest so there will be a commercial market for the artichoke, a crop plant which can be produced in the middlewest when other crops fail, and all we need is a little moral support to put this project where it will be manufacturing levulose syrup, sugar, flour and alcohol. We now know that one ton of artichoke tubers will make 25 gallons of power alcohol and there is a ready market for it. We are continually receiving requests for levulose syrup, sugar, flour from the artichoke.

Obviously there is no commercial market for the artichokes today and I do not know of anyone who is telling the people there is until we can complete our processing plant at Gering. There are not enough artichokes in the United States to make a commercial market. We have to use them for seed now.

FRED G. JOHNSON.

For the English Only

LEWELLEN.—I don't know that Dr. Gallup is concerned at all about my opinion, but I am surprised that the institute displays such shocking taste as to conduct a poll on the Simpson-King Edward matter. There would be a little more propriety in evidence if the institute would attempt such a poll of English citizens. It is their affair primarily, not ours.

E. H. TIPTON

UNICAMERAL EXPERIMENT.

Beatrice Sun.—Nebraska will be the center of interest for students of governmental forms when our unicameral legislation convenes within a few weeks. Other states are watching to see what the one-house legislature will bring forth. Up to now no movement to adopt the one-house pattern has gained headway in any other state but our experiment will be watched with interest.

The Kansas City Star comments upon the fact that no panacea is to be found in a plan. This applies to all plans of government. The Star recalls that arguments used to support the unicameral system are like those in favor of the commission form of city government adding that it has been no panacea for partisanship inefficiency and the other ills it was designed to cure.

The non-partisan ballot has not insured the selection of legislators who are indifferent to partisan politics for 32 members of the unicameral legislature have been legislators under the former system. And if there are no recognized parties still there may be blocs and divisions along lines of interest.

Declaring that state legislative reform to attain such ends as are aimed at in Nebraska is an admitted need. The Star gets down to the solid truth which cannot be evaded, under any governmental form. "A fundamental change in system is not enough or perhaps even necessary. An alert public interest that demands the nomination and election of men of integrity and capacity is in fact the real fundamental.

There's the core of the whole business. Whether we are more likely to get men of capacity and integrity under any proposed system than we are under the existing one is the big question. An alert public interest is necessary. Without it no system will insure our being well served in government. There can be good management under any system and bad management under any system.

One can imagine a stranger wandering into Kansas City noting the shortcomings of municipal administration and launching a reform which might be a return to the system to escape the consequences of which the present reform system was adopted. No plan is a substitute for civic virtue.

NEWS FROM TODAY'S MORNING JOURNAL

MRS. MARY TAYLOR HELD WITHOUT BOND

Motion to Dismiss Rejected; State Has 7 Witnesses; Trial in February.

NEBRASKA CITY, (Ø County Judge Morton ordered Mrs. Mary Taylor held for trial without bond Tuesday in connection with the death of her husband, Otha, garage mechanic, whose body was found in a ravine near Nebraska City two weeks ago.

Judge Morton overruled Defense Counsel T. E. Dunbar's motion to dismiss the complaint, which charges Mrs. Taylor with first degree murder. The widow was returned to jail after an all day preliminary hearing. She did not testify, but the state presented seven witnesses.

Altho the district court now is in session, Deputy County Attorney James said the case probably would not come to trial before next February.

Taylor was found with a bullet in his head and bound with rope and wire. County Attorney Moran said he believed Mrs. Taylor shot her husband in bed, hid him in a cave near her home several days and then lowered the body into the ravine by means of the wire.

The county attorney questioned at length W. H. Campen of the Omaha Testing laboratories. Campen testified he analyzed several samples of blood obtained by the investigators from the Taylor residence and automobile. The blood, he said, was found to be from a human, but he added he could not determine whether it was from a male or female or what type it was.

Blood Stains from a Human.

Darrell Glittinger, 17, a hardware store clerk, told the court he sold 10 feet of rope to Mrs. Taylor four days before Taylor's body was found. Campen said an examination of the rope used to bind the body and a sample obtained from the store showed they were "basically the same."

The other witnesses described their investigations into the slaying. They were Dr. T. L. Weekes, who performed an autopsy on Taylor's body shortly after it was discovered; Sheriff Ryder, Police Chief Ottnat, Special Investigator Condit and Deputy County Sheriff Zimmer.

Dr. Weekes said he took a .22 caliber bullet from Taylor's head and found no other cause for the death. The physician said he believed Taylor died 24 hours before his body was found.

Relates Finding of Body.

Sheriff Ryder related he found the body tied with two kinds of rope and wrapped in a blanket. He said he later went to the Taylor home and found the floors clean but the rest of the interior dirty. The mattress on Taylor's bed was wet and blood spots were found under the bed and in other parts of the house, he said.

His testimony was corroborated by Ottnat. Condit said he obtained the blood samples. All three and Deputy Zimmer said they searched for the gun used in the slaying but were unable to find it.

Moran offered 27 exhibits and all were accepted by Judge Morton. The evidence included an insurance policy carried by Taylor and which designated his widow as beneficiary.

Mrs. Maude Beard, 45, mother of Mrs. Taylor, was held several days as a material witness in the early part of the investigation, but she was not asked to testify Tuesday. She was released from custody "until further order" last Wednesday when her husband, A. W. Beard, 54, died of a paralytic stroke.

Dunbar objected to the introduction of a bed pad found in Mrs. Beard's cistern, but Judge Morton ruled it should be retained as evidence for the district court trial. Taylor's car was taken from Mrs. Beard's garage to the court house during the investigation and authorities obtained blood samples from the rear left wheel. These samples were part of those declared by Campen to be from a human.

FRENCH ARMY MAJOR SPEAKS

Vivier Stops Here, Addresses Alliance Francaise.

Major Max Vivier, late of the French and Polish armies and self styled soldier of fortune, paused in Lincoln Tuesday night to address Alliance Francaise, French speaking organization at the University of Nebraska. Major Vivier is now on an extended lecture tour of the United States and Canada and by special request stopped in Lincoln between scheduled lectures at Omaha and Cheyenne.

Major Vivier served as staff officer in the A. E. F. under General Pershing from January, 1918, until the armistice, after which he joined the Polish army. He now divided his time between New York and his old home in Brittany, France and admires very much the American people and their ways.

Speaking in French before an audience of approximately 75 persons at Ellen Smith hall, Major Vivier scored the failure of civilization to instill within its people confidence, moral courage and frankness, referring to the many treaties and arbitration parleys arranged by nations whose people have not been taught the value of these virtues. He views the international situation as dangerous not only from the standpoint of involving nations in war but also in provoking civil wars, or wars between classes, within countries.

HABEAS CORPUS POSTPONED

Hearing on Deportation Matter Set for Saturday.

Because the returns had not been answered, habeas corpus hearings of Laurs Peter Jensen and Tage Pauli Ove Jensen, 33 and 30, respectively, allegedly subjects of the king of Denmark, were postponed by Judge Munger Tuesday afternoon until Saturday at 11 a. m. The court announced that the case, when heard, should be covered in full and not piece meal.

George W. Ayres, assistant attorney general, representing the state, raised the question of how to hold the brothers after pardon board commutation even tho the board's action was in contemplation of a turnover to immigration officials for deportation. The court solved this problem by ordering that the parties be remanded to the custody of Warden O'Grady and Harry Jespersen, superintendent of the reformatory, to be held for the Saturday hearing.

William Holst, attorney representing the brothers, alleges in his petition that William Hays, jr., divisional director of immigration, is responsible for the holding of the men for deportation. Such detention, he contends, is illegal. In his answer, Mr. Hays denies that he has custody of the pair or at any time has had custody of them.

The brothers were convicted in Dodge county of breaking and entering and convicted on two counts. The sentence in each instance was 18 months on each count, sentences to run concurrently. One has served in the penitentiary and the other in the reformatory. An older brother, Thorwald Jensen, Fremont, was with them in the court room. U. S. District Attorney Nye represented Mr. Hays.

BIG SHAKEUP WHEN GOOD TAKES OFFICE

Rate Expert Ross of Railway Commission One Slated to Retire.

C. A. Ross, rate expert of the state railway commission for the past 24 years, drawing a salary of $3,300 a year, one of the best rate experts in the United States according to Railway Commissioner Maupin, has practically been given notice that he is to be dismissed by Commissioner Bollen and F. A. Good when the latter takes his office Jan. 7 as a newly elected commissioner. Ross understands, he said, that he is to be given until Sept. 1 to get another job. Secretary Halpine, a comparatively new man in his position, drawing $2,640 a year, is slated to go soon after Good becomes commissioner, according to reports, and a general exodus of other employes is to take place.

"I doubt if I will be allowed a stenographer of my own choosing," said Maupin, minority member of the three man commission. "The test is likely to be who voted for Good, and it is my opinion, altho I do not know, that only about two employes of the commission voted for Good. I join Bollen in asking for a constitutional amendment making the commissioners appointive by the governor, for I don't think Bollen will stand any show of either appointment or election at the end of two years when his six year term expires. Ross is a high grade rate expert and gets only $3,300 a year. In New Jersey they pay $15,000 a year."

After the first of the year the three commissioners will all be democrats.

Bollen denied that he had really given notice to Ross to quit Sept. 1 of next year. "I was never satisfied with Ross," he said. "Ross feels he has lost out. He came to me and we had a talk. He also had a talk with Good. He will be given time to get a job. I would not say he was given notice of removal."

In his years of service with the railway commission Ross has participated in many applications for reduced rates and restitution of charges in hearings before the interstate commerce commission. In nearly every case he has been the principal witness credited with obtaining some reduction in rates for shippers and organizations of shippers. In past years grain rate reductions obtained for Nebraska were estimated at $1,000,000 a year. Potato rates for 11 western counties were reduced $40,000 a year.

Petroleum rates were reduced $40,000 to $50,000 a year and restitution ordered in one case in which Ross testified and prepared exhibits. Many class rates were reduced. Dairy products rates were reduced $75,000 a year. Coal rates were reduced 20 cents a ton or $75,000 a year. Livestock rates and livestock transit privileges, rates on packing house products, horses, mules and vegetables were reduced in cases in which Ross participated.

'SCOLDING BAD FOR CHILD'

Injurious to Health Says WPA Nutritionist.

It is injurious to a child's health to send him to bed without supper or to scold him at meal time, Mrs. Bonnie Morrision Stepp, Lancaster county WPA nutritionist, warned parents in the second of her lectures in the public health series Tuesday afternoon at the health department. About 50 nurses and interested women attended.

"It is imperative to the good health of any boy or girl that he or she get three regular meals each day, and must be made also to follow regular habits of sleeping and elimination," Mrs. Stepp said. "Violation of these habits may easily result in the child becoming underweight."

Food fads such as reducing salts, reducing soaps, and artificial food tablets were denounced as "quack remedies." Mrs. Stepp included in her talk a discussion of diets for persons who are suffering from certain common diseases, emphasizing that these diets are but modifications of the normal, liberal diet for healthy people.

DOANE TO WISCONSIN UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Awaits Official Approval; Salary to Be $6,500, Now Gets $4,080.

Gilbert H. Doane, University of Nebraska librarian for the past 11 years, has been offered a position as librarian at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, subject to the official confirmation by the board of regents at that school, it was learned Wednesday. His net salary at the Big Ten school is understood to be $6,500 as compared with his present salary of $4,080. His base salary at Nebraska is $4,800, less the $720 current salary cut.

If approved by the Wisconsin board, Mr. Doane plans to assume his new position about Feb. 1, 1937. During his time at Nebraska the library has grown from a total of 190,000 volumes to 306,000 volumes and has expanded to use the entire building which formerly also housed the art department and historical society. When Mr. Doane came to Nebraska about one-third of the building was used for the library proper. A new charging system and a great deal of cataloguing and filing work has been done during Mr. Doane's administration.

BAILEY FILES ANSWER.

Sam Bailey, layman, charged with contempt of court by the attorney general in that he was engaged as a solicitor for Frank A. Dutton, attorney, and thus practiced law without a license, has filed an answer in the supreme court, his demurrer filed previously having been overruled. Bailey says in his answer he has been employed by various attorneys as an investigator of facts and that he also has been engaged as salesman of artificial limbs. He says he has not knowingly violated any rules of the supreme court or any law. He pleads not guilty, but desires to be purged of the charge of contempt and humbly asks the court to excuse him from the charges. If he has violated rules of the court he says he will desist. He contends that the contempt procedure is in violation of his rights under the state and federal constitutions.

ARGUMENT ON BOND HEARD

Defense Asks One in Writ of Prohibition Case.

District Judge Frost took under submission Tuesday afternoon the question as to whether a bond should be furnished to protect the defendants, W. R. Linch and Thomas P. Johnson, in the action for a writ of prohibition brought by Attorney General Wright in relation to 1,800 farmers sued in Justice Barney's court. Judge Frost indicated that it was doubtful whether a bond could be ordered by the court.

He said it was plain from a statutory provision that the attorney general could not be required to furnish a bond to protect the defendants Linch and Thomas in case the higher court held a writ, if one was granted, to be erroneous. R. F. Stout for the defendants contended that a bond should be furnished by the persons represented by the attorney general to protect his clients from loss as the jurisdiction of the justice would have expired by the time the case was finally determined.

Attorney L. K. Twinem contended that for the defendants' attorney to argue that a bond should be furnished by the persons represented by the attorney general would be seeking to do indirectly what could not be done directly.

Attorneys Albert Johnson and Arthur Perry contended that no bond is required in a case of writ of prohibition. Perry said that if the defendants were in danger of loss because of the fact that a writ was granted they were to blame, not the attorney general or the farmers sued in Barney's court. The attorneys should have taken the matter under consideration and not attempted to do what they could not rightly do.

They should not ask a bond because they did something wrongly, he said. William Niklaus also argued along this line. Attorney Stout said that the arguments were based on the proposition that if the court granted a writ the higher court would sustain the ruling but it did not take into consideration that the higher court might reverse the lower court. Hearing on the merits of the case for a permanent writ of prohibition will be heard Wednesday at 9 a. m.

FATHERS AND SONS DINE

Hi-Y Group Addressed by H. J. Gramlich.

Fathers and sons must unite to improve living conditions, Prof. Howard J. Gramlich told a Hi-Y father and son dinner Tuesday night. He said life has advanced rapidly since the father of today was a boy and that in time of depression, modern youths do without things their parents never had.

Calvin Rollins gave a charge to fathers and Fenner King responded for that group. John DePutron was toastmaster, the invocation was by Ray E. Rice, boys work secretary, and John Mason led group singing. Oz Black outlined Hi-Y world service work and H. A. Sandberg told of the state older boys conference Dec. 11 and 12, which is expected to draw 500 delegates from over the state.

Ervin King discussed the membership campaign and father and son devotional work was the theme of Edward Edison. Roger Emrich played the accordion. Approximately 65 attended.

"THANKS A MILLION"
FOR MORE THAN A MILLION

America has bought 1,130,000 Chevrolets during the past twelve months, thereby giving Chevrolet the greatest year in its history and the greatest measure of buyer preference it has ever enjoyed.

CHEVROLET The builders of Chevrolet are thankful for many things, but most of all for the warm friendship of the American people.

And so again at this Thanksgiving season we say, "Thank you, America," for you have given Chevrolet a measure of good-will without parallel in the annals of modern industry.

Consider, for a moment, all that you have done to inspire Chevrolet's appreciation during the past twelve months:

You have purchased 1,130,000 Chevrolets; you have made Chevrolet your favorite car for the seventh time in the past ten years; you have given Chevrolet strong preference in every section of the country; you have conferred this same high honor upon Chevrolet trucks by purchasing more than 205,000 commercial units; you have made 1936 the most successful year in all Chevrolet history.

And now, to climax these expressions of friendship, you are displaying even more marked preference for the new Chevrolet for 1937.

It is difficult to express adequate appreciation for gifts so great and so generous as these.

All we can say is, "Thanks a million" for more than a million cars in 1936; and all we can do is offer you the still finer Chevrolet of 1937 in return for the finest friendship ever bestowed upon any motor car manufacturer.

for unemployment compensation. Such revenue goes into the general fund of the federal treasury. The provision of the federal act to remit 90 percent of the tax when the state enacts an unemployment compensation is to encourage states to pass such laws.

"The state legislature is confronted with the extent to which the state law shall apply. If it follows the federal law and provides for a tax upon employers of 'eight or more,' only about 20 percent, or less, of the wage earners of the state will be affected. The suggestion is often advanced that there seems to be no good reason that if insurance against unemployment, and provision for payment of benefits in event of unemployment, is good for the employees in an establishment where 'eight or more' are employed, that it would not be good in an establishment where 'one or more' persons are employed.

The fixing of the number of employes at 'eight or more' in the national act was an arbitrary action. The committee appointed by the president to study the social security plan fixed the number at four. It was stated by the committee in the hearings before the finance committee of the United States senate that the number four was arrived at by the mean of the number of employes to which the workmen's compensation law applied. The bill as originally introduced provided for the tax upon employers of 'four or more.' Being a revenue measure it originated in the house of representatives. An amendment offered by a representative from Wisconsin, fixing the number at 'ten or more' was adopted by the house. The senate, by amendment, placed the number at four, as recommended by the president's committee and the conference committee agreed upon eight. The law provides that the tax shall be levied upon all employers who, on any one day during 20 different weeks, have eight or more persons in their employ but such employment need not be at the same moment of time. It is sufficient if it be on the same day.

See Situation in Many Lights.

"The employers of less than eight visualize the situation, that if the state law provides for tax upon one or more employes that they are being treated unjustly as under the federal law they are not required to pay the tax.

"The employers of eight or more visualize the situation, that their competitors in the same line, employing less than eight, have an advantage over them of a 3 percent less payroll and therefore can undersell them, in event the state law adopts the minimum of eight as provided by the federal act.

"The consumer would visualize the situation, as having the burden passed on to him by the way of increased cost of his commodity to absorb this tax. Consequently he is very seriously interested in having the tax apply to as few establishments and as few commodities as possible.

"All the wage earners visualize the situation, as to whether they are in the class that will be benefited by this job insurance or whether because of being employed in small establishments they will be excluded from the benefits.

"These various conflicts present a very difficult problem for the legislature to solve."

to file its application for direct flow rights. This application must be accompanied by plats showing what lands will be irrigated under the project.

Eliminates Republican Valley.

The original Tri-County plans called for irrigation of about a half million acres, a large part of which lay in the Republican river valley. These lands must be eliminated.

Shortly after the supreme court ruled in the Tri-County case, project attorneys induced the court to modify the opinion so that it did not say whether or not the district could use canals outside of the Platte watershed, so long as the water was not used to irrigate lands there. This was done by deleting a comma.

Tilley said under the attorney general's opinion, the use of such a canal would be a proper subject for a hearing, if and when a hearing is requested by Tri-County objectors.

They were two main sets of objectors to the Tri-County applications. One consisted of riparian owners, those whose lands border the river. The supreme court reversed Tilley's order because their rights were held to be violated. It offered no opinion on the protests of another group of objectors, those who hold early priorities on appropriation of water in the Platte river from Kearney west to North Platte.

STATE BALKED IN GETTING WPA FUNDS

regular quota when the farmers are transferred.

Gov. Cochran conferred with Director Felton of the state WPA work and Mr. White of the resettlement work. He said White stated that if counties will assume responsibility for compensation for injuries farmers can work out their grants White said there are now 12,000 resettlement cases and this may be increased to 17,000 in December and 21,000 in January.

The governor's appeal to Secretary Hopkins at Washington came as a result of a message from the mayor of Norfolk stating that cutting off of WPA work would leave 700 families on direct relief and county funds are exhausted and "actual hunger is present."

No other cities have indicated to the governor that they are unable to s are in giving direct relief or that they desire the responsibility for relief to continue or be carried by the federal government.

Director Tolen of the state assistance committee said the state assistance committee on the start had set aside $1,078,448, all derived from state funds for direct relief, that about half this had been alloted to counties last winter and the balance was being conserved for emergency use during the coming winter. The amount for direct relief is 21.2 percent of all social security funds appropriated by the last legislature. Tolen said Madison county, Norfolk being the county seat had been allotted on the start $20,377 for direct relief. About half was drawn by the county last winter and $1,000 was drawn last month, leaving $9,000 available for the county for direct relief this coming winter.

Additional staff personnel to take care of the estimated peak load of 21,266 subsistence grant cases expected by January was requested by State Resettlement Director White. Applications from farmers for grants, feed loans and crop production loans are increasing rapidly and now amount to 700 or 800 daily, White said. Feed loan cases probably will reach a maximum in February with an estimate of 4,688 farmers. To date, a total of 13,382 grants and 31,190 feed loans have been approved.

and a "veritable arsenal of guns and ammunition."

It added: "phanton cars," used by subversive fascists to dash about the city at night, shooting militiamen, were quartered at "certain embassies."

Six British members of parliament, who came to Madrid in the hope of viewing a fascist bombardment, arrived early Wednesday from Valencia and visited Gen. Jose Miaja, the defense chief.

Tt Italian embassy was also seized and locked. Fifty rightist Spanish refugees were put out of the embassies.

CITY READY TO GREET BIGGEST OF GATHERINGS

in preparation of this welcome to Santa Claus."

Fine Co-operation.

He commended Nebraska towns and cities for the excellent cooperation being exhibited in order that their little folks may enjoy the benefits of an unusual spectacle prepared for them. Letters from mayors of other municipalities are being rushed to Mayor Egan's desk. These are acceptances containing nominations of a junior mayor and a first lady to officially represent these towns and cities.

The city of Ashland, thru Mayor Guy Zeigler, held an election to select the top junior and his little lady. Selections were made by the public schools. Each grade having students from 5 to 12 selected two representatives. An election served to eliminate all but Bobby Durst as junior mayor and Willa Reim as his lady. In this election the juvenile voters took into account citizenship and scholarship as well as popularity.

From Alma, nearly 200 miles from Lincoln, came Dr. Johnson's letter telling of the selection there of Aoel and Lois Birmingham, junior mayor and first lady, to represent that city in Lincoln Friday. In addition to the above and nominations previously published, the following acceptances have been received.

York, Mayor C. N Beaver nominates Gerry F. Beaver as junior mayor and Mary Claire Phillips, as his first lady, to represent that city, at the same time expressing appreciation for hte honor.
Elmwood, Mayor Ed Earnst sends name of David Cook as junior mayor and Noma Berl Clements as his lady.
Wilber V J Kohout nominates Bobby and Shirley Fay Apfelbeck as junior mayor and first lady.
Cedar Bluffs, Mayor J P Jessen nominates Donald Loudon and Dorothy Knapp.
Geneva, Mayor J. Bixby sends names of Fritzie Picard and Patty Kline as junior representatives of that city.
David City, Mayor W C Buchta nominates Donald Thomas jr., as junior mayor and Jacqueline Book as his lady.
Beatrice, from Mayor Fred A Werts comes the names of Bobby Lee Latta, junior mayor, and Suzanne Stoll, junior lady, to officially represent the Gage metropolis.

Will Report Back.

These official representatives who will sit in review when the parade passes the city hall, are expected to make a detailed report back to their subjects. The Lincoln mayor, speaking of these honored juniors, said:

"They are ambassadors extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary."

Time has been too short perhaps for all mayors to report on their nominations, the executive said.

"I wish it understood thruout the state," he added, "that every town and city is invited to send not only a junior mayor and first lady as official representatives but many citizens as well. These junior representatives will be officially welcomed on their arrival at the city hall. They will be provided with vantage seats for viewing the parade—places reserved in advance for them. I want to urge all towns and cities to be represented. While advance notice gives us some idea as to the number we may expect, it is not essential. We will have room and places for all. The mayor's rooms at the city hall will be open to these visitors from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., parade time."

The mayor recently designated six women, wives of junior chamber members, to assist in welcoming the junior mayors and their ladies. Mrs. Bryan will join the mayor in this welcome. On Wednesday he named Charles Hoff, president of the junior chamber, and the following three past presidents to lend their assistance in the reception line: Douglas Timmerman, Dr. Merritt L. Pedersen, Burks Harley.

But Tuesday night while his brother was dying, he had hours to think of the proven inseparability of Siamese twins. If one dies, the other dies too, with very few exceptions.

As Lucio drew his last agonized breath, nurses prepared the operating room. Forty minutes later the living body and the dead body were lifted onto the stretcher and wheeled thru the corridor under the bright light.

While the surgeon and his four assistants worked, the sisters, Natividad and Victorin, their wives, waited in another room, unaware that Lucio had died. After it was over Natividad was informed that she was a widow.

Doctors believed there was an excellent chance for Simplicio to survive. He and his brother differed from all previous Siamese twins in that they did not share on efficulatory system, a condition which in the past has made severance operations impossible.

SHOULD ALL YOUNG PEOPLE WHO EXPECT TO GO INTO BUSINESS, BE GIVEN A COURSE IN PSYCHOLOGY? YES OR NO
IS IT TRUE THAT THE MORE INTELLIGENCE PEOPLE HAVE THE MORE THEY DESIRE TO BECOME LEADERS? YES OR NO
WHEN HE GETS ANOTHER DEGREE HE'S GOING INTO POLITICS
CAN WOMEN STAND LONELINESS BETTER THAN CAN MEN? YES OR NO
#3

Author's note: Answers are from the scientific viewpoint. Not all moral questions can be answered with absolute scientific accuracy, but no decision as to what is morally right is possible without science. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. The most absurd things to me in modern life are, first, that people who expect to go into politics and government service are not trained in politics and government service beforehand, but learn at the public expense; second, that people whose whole life in business is dealing with their own and other people's minds are not given training in the science of mind—their own and other people's. The average "business course" includes fine training in other things but misses this important subject.

2. Probably you and I suffer more from the fact that highly intelligent people more often than not shun leadership, than from any other trait in human nature. Prof. Edward L. Thorndike, noted psychologist, has measured in Applied Psychology the tendency of highly intelligent people to enjoy being leaders and shoulder responsibility; and he finds more often than not that highly intelligent people have a sort of general dislike for people in the mass and for resoonsibility and, as he says, probably fail to "use their power in politics, business and human affairs partly from dislike of people and responsibility and their sensitiveness to blame and criticism." No one can read the French philosopher, Faguet's "Cult of Stupidity" without feeling that we are governed mostly by thick-skinned mediocrities who do not mind criticism.

An intelligence test will be sent to our readers on request, accompanied by a 3 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope, plus ten cents to cover actual cost.

3. Thousands of tests have been given to men and women on personality traits; and on all these tests the men score higher on the ability to be contented alone, to be happy working alone, to depend on their own judgment instead of seeking the help of others in formulating their decisions and plans. These traits are summed up under the general heading, "self-sufficiency," and, while there are exceptions, the majority of men score higher on self-sufficiency than the women.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Mary Gordon

Dear Mary Gordon: I am a girl 17, considered the average type on looks, do not smoke or drink and a very good sport.

I have dated many different boys and like them all. But there is one whom I am particularly fond of. I have had one date with him and that was thru the aid of a friend. I see him quite often with friends of mine, of both sexes, at church and other public places. He is very nice to me in every respect when we meet. And I might add that he doesn't smoke or drink.

Please Mary Gordon, tell me how I can win the affection of this boy.—Help Wanted.

A. Over and over this plea comes in. And how can one answer it? Sometimes you do it by indifference, sometimes by showing him you think him the most marvelous man in the world. In fact come to think of it, this latter way is almost sure fire, unless you overdo it. Why not try it? Praise him, to his friends, as well as to his face, sincerely, constantly. Show by your manner that you think him "tops." Most men respond to flattery if discreetly applied.

Nineteen's Sister: 1. You need not send the man who is getting married a card and certainly send no gift. When you see him afterward congratulate him.

2. Send the young men Christmas cards if you wish but no gifts.

3. You may order what you wish after the show, not making the order too small or the young man will think you are deliberately trying to save his pocketbook and it might hurt his pride. As long as he asks what you want, he is then free to order whatever he wishes.

4. Going alone to dances and getting a date to bring you home is not looked on with favor in the best circles.

Dear Mary Gordon: Don't be in a hurry to marry girls. You have loads of time. Girls do learn how to darn, patch, and mend the holes before they get too large or while they are young. Have your mothers show you how to clean upstairs not only the living room where you play bridge.

Be careful of too much difference in your religion. This has made trouble also, many times after the kiddies arrive. I am in tears many times about this, and know what I am talking about.

Two young wives I know have from two to six children and are nice kids but fathers have only work about six months a year and if it were not for two grandmothers and a auntie that never married and is spending her hard earned cash on these children, I don't think these children would have enough to wear so as to go to school and look like other kiddies. There aunties and grandmas come in handy times like this. And I have seen one of these young mothers be anything but nice when she has been told a little something by her mother-in-law and it would only be for her best interest. But she thinks she knows what's best and never tries to earn a dollar in some way she could. Just says, Can't do it nowadays. And such as sewing or mending makes her nervous.

And both of these men drink some and smoke a lot and did before they married and like most girls they did not care then about this. I am sure times will be better some day. I sure hope so as these fathers will be more busy and their wives can help more so as to make a better home for their poor kiddies.—X. Y. Z.

A. There are thousands of such cases in our fair state. I have no doubt.

Tidbit Balls.

1 cup seeded raisins
1 cup dates
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
Melted dipping chocolate

Put the raisins and dates, thru the food chopper. Add the cinnamon, vanilla and salt and mix thoroly. Roll into three-quarter inch balls and dip in melted chocolate. If preferred, the dipping may be eliminated and the balls rolled in powdered sugar, or in shredded cocoanut.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW
NO matter how much your backaches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month
Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2 Preparing for motherhood. 3 Approaching "middle age"

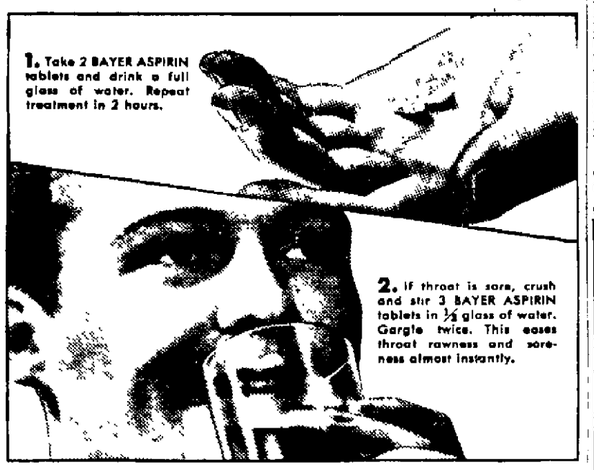
How to Ease a Cold Quickly



1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.
2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in ½ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

Get Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving Bayer Aspirin. Take 2 Tablets

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat the fever and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's — not for "aspirin" alone.

Knowledge of Health Important to Mother

Parent Should Be Able to Tell When Child Is Really Sick, Says Dr. Copeland

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

I WAS reminded of this subject by a radio talk I just heard from the lips of that wonderful Dr Dafoe. His wise handling of the quintuplets has won the admiration of the world.

The young mother makes herself familiar with the progress of a normal infant and knows what to expect as her own child grows older. This knowledge makes it possible to plan the daily diet schedule and to guard the infant against infection.

Caring for infants used to be an unsatisfactory undertaking. This statement is no reflection on our mothers and grandmothers because it is only recently that great strides have been made in the care of young children. What is even more important is that this knowledge is now available to the young mother. Indeed, most mothers of today are familiar with many things which were not at the disposal even of the physician a quarter of a century ago.

Health Pamphlets

The United States department of labor has recently issued a series of articles on child health. I would recommend that all mothers send for these interesting and helpful pamphlets. Bear in mind that this information is not intended as a substitute for the doctor. But it surely is a great aid in guarding the child against disease, and it tells when the doctor should be called.

It is difficult to care for the infant unless the mother has become familiar with the appearance of a normal and healthy baby. This may seem very elementary, but if your baby becomes ill, you will be better able quickly to detect the difference in its appearance.

A healthy baby has a clear skin, bright, wide open eyes and a contented expression. It cries very little, has a good appetite and usually sleeps quietly with the mouth closed. If the infant is in pain or is suffering from some discomfort, it will cry and be restless. As a rule in illness, the evacuations become irregular, showing abnormal color and consistency. Instead of a steady gain in weight, there may be a loss of weight. The normal, average baby doubles its birth weight by the end of the fifth or sixth month. By the end of the first year, the weight should be three times the weight at birth.

Progress of Infant

Mothers soon learn when the baby is expected to hold up its head and to support the body. The average baby can do this during the third month. At seven or eight months it should sit and begin to creep, but some babies are slow about these things. This may be due to a deficiency in the diet or because of some internal disorder.

As a rule, the baby begins to walk between 12 to 18 months and during this period is likely to speak a few words. Of course, there can be no set rule and, as a matter of fact, some babies are very slow in this evidence of development. There is no reason to worry over it.

If your baby seems a bit backward, talk to your doctor. It is a good plan to bring baby to the doctor regularly for a check in weight and height and an observation of its development.

Answers to Health Queries

A Constant Reader. Q.—For some time I have had a pain around the large bone at the back of my neck. Could it be possible for anything to be out of place there that causes the pain? When I turn my head I hear a grating noise and at times the pain is at the base of my head.

A.—Consult your physician. It would be advisable to have x-rays taken of your back. Your doctor will advise you.

Married Comrades

A Sequel to "Given in Marriage"

By Adele Garrison

THERE WAS something so insistent in Allen Drake's manner as he asked me to tell him everything I knew concerning the recent mysterious activities of Philip Veritzen that I found myself retailing hastily the story of Mary's flight to us, of her father-in-law's queer request that Noel occupy the luxurious apartment he had fitted up mysteriously, and of the yacht upon which Philip Veritzen now was, and to which I understood he had summoned Noel.

He listened attentively, asking no question, making no comment until I had finished. Then he fitted his finger tips together in a gesture so characteristic of my father that I winced at seeing it, and sat for several seconds without speaking.

"So," he said at last, "that is it." Then he put a sharp, quick question.

"This is the extent of your knowledge?"

Further Developments

"Yes," I replied. "I have repeated every slightest detail, some unnecessary, I fear."

"I needed every one," he retorted decidedly. Then he added reflectively, "You say you think your husband and Lillian's know of further developments."

"I cannot say that positively, but I am reasonably sure they are aware of facts not in my possession, at least."

"When will they be back?" he asked next.

"You know as much about that as either Lillian or I do," I told him. "You heard them say they might be back in twenty-four hours, but they could not be certain."

"They'll stay until they've safely kennelled that hound, that's certain," Mr. Drake agreed. "Well, there's nothing more to be done until Dick and Harry come back. Thank you ever so much for telling me what you have. Here come Nurse Whitlock and Lillian. I thought they'd be along about now. And please believe me when I tell you I'm sorry you have to go through that rigamarole again. But I'm afraid there's no way out of it."

Madge Discouraged

There was "no way out of it". Lillian saw to that. Inexorably she acted as stage manager while I stooped and kissed my supposed father upon the forehead, and he held my hand against his cheek.

"You're letter perfect, Madge," she said when we were all once more safely inside the house. "Nothing could be more convincing. Now just take care that you follow the business of the role upon every appearance."

I made no comment aloud, but my spirits sank to a new low. I calculated swiftly. Twice a day my supposed father was to have his outing as a convalescent upon the upper balcony. And twice, at least, during each outing I would have to simulate the caresses which I would ordinarily give my real father if I were in attendance upon him while he was recovering from a severe illness.

Repeat Balcony Scene

But I said nothing, and the dreary farce was repeated in the afternoon when we again brought out Allen Drake for the "balcony scene". The next forenoon brought another repetition of the distasteful task, but by that time a lively fear was engrossing me so much that I went through the caresses mechanically without thinking anything about them.

It was a fear shared by Lillian that was obsessing me. Not one word had been received by us from our absent husbands, and with the passing of each slow minute our fears for their safety upon their dangerous mission waxed greater.

By the time the afternoon "balcony scene" was to be staged, both Lillian and I were in the state known as "fit to be tied", and Mother Graham, though in ignorance of the real danger her son was running, was terribly uneasy. Allen Drake had to prod us all into the realistic acting of our roles, but I felt actually numb as I went through the part assigned me.

I was jolted effectually out of my despairing apathy, however, when as I raised by head from kissing Allen Drake upon the forehead, and pressing his hand affectionately against my cheek, I saw Dicky's eyes glaring at me from the doorway, and heard him exclaim angrily, "What the devil?—"

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Crawford claimed the baby late Tuesday from charity hospital and returned to their shack near Pearl river, 50 miles from here. When she admitted the dog story was false, Mrs. Crawford said her husband was not the baby's father and that she had not wanted him to know the child was hers.

Hammers Apt to Hit Anything

Goodnight Stories

By MAX TRELL

"LOOK THEY'RE being hit over the head!" Knarf cried down.

The shadow boy was perched on top of the garden wall. King Fat-Wat and the tin soldier were watching him. On the other side were the king's subjects.

Knarf gazed down at them. They looked curiously like nails, he thought. They had flat heads and their bodies were long and thin and pointed at the end. They were dashing about in among the trees, shouting at the top of their shrill voices.

The enemy was there, too. In fact there were quite a number of them. And Knarf noticed to his astonishment that they were all shaped like hammers!

"It's the war between the hammers and the nails!" he cried down.

Always Fighting

"They're always fighting," King Fat-Wat said. "It's a shame."

The tin soldier rushed up and down the wall, trying his best to find some way to get over to the other side. "I'll drive those hammers away! Let me get at them!" But he couldn't get at them.

Knarf really felt sorry for the poor nails. The hammers were hitting them with all their might over the head. Some of the nails tried to climb up into the trees.

"It's the war between the hammers and nails!"

But the hammers came along, hit them over the head, and drove them right into the wood.

Then he jumped down to help them. No sooner did he do so than one of the hammers came dashing up to him to hit him over the head. He dodged out of the way. But the next instant, when the tin soldier dropped to the ground, the hammer turned on him. Bang!—right over the head it hit him.

And when King Fat-Wat came down, the same thing happened to him.

"Oh, my head . . . my head!" wailed the king.

Then the hammers, having driven all the nails they could find into the wood, and having hit the tin soldier and King Fat-Wat over the head, and being unable to catch Knarf—all marched off joyfully, feeling very proud of themselves.

EMPLOYES TO GET A BONUS

Miller & Paine Workers Will Share in Profits.

Miller & Paine department store will pay approximately 540 employes at 6 percent bonus on their 1936 salaries, according to an announcement by R. E. Campbell, general manager. The bonus, which will be the first paid since 1922, will be distributed Dec. 1.

Mr. Campbell said the store had experienced the best business conditions this year since 1931. The employes were called into a special session to be told of the plan to distribute profits. This custom is followed when the business outlook is good but does not warrant general salary increases. It does not, however, work against the boosts if conditions warrant, he said.

ENROUTE WITH NEBRASKA CORNHUSKERS—This will be the last time for about two weeks that this particular pillar will appear and will Mick "Ozzie" Romans be pleased about that! Rumbling westward to Portland with the Huskers we'll take a Russians holiday and watch Notre Dame beat Southern Cal at Los Angeles the following week.

As we rolled along Wednesday morning it occured to us to ask the seniors aboard what their future plans might be. Sam Francis was first.

The Tireless One hasn't figured out exactly but he doubts if he will play pro football. Wants to finish school which he thinks he can do by picking up some requirements next semester then strike out in the business world. Sam has the personality and there never was a more conscientious youth.

Then came Cardwell Cardy hasn't decided. He took the physical education course and may coach. He will have about enough hours this spring to graduate but lacks some required subjects which he may take in summer school to get a diploma. May give the pro game a whirl.

Ron Douglas has another year in the engineering school. Playing football caused him to miss some 'labs' which he will have to make up. Any lad who can carry an engineering course and stay eligible doesn't need to worry much about the future. He's learned to make the most of every minute of his waking hours.

Les McDonald hasn't decided either, but may give pro football a try. Expects to play basketball here this winter on Harry Johnson's team.

Jack Ellis who will graduate from the business administration college, has no definite plans.

Ken McGinnis will continue a medical education at Omaha, and then seek a berth in the regular army in the medical corps. He gets an ROTC commission this spring.

Virgil Yelkin has decided to be a coach. He took the physical course and will get a diploma in June. Virg is the type who knows what he wants and then sets about getting it. We all agreed when he decided to lay out a year in order to make the Portland trip that he was making a grave error. Too many good ends to take a chance like that. But Virg fought his way back to a starting position for the Missouri game and he's been at right end ever since. He wanted to go to Portland and here he is traveling as a first class passenger and as a first class end.

A letter from Ted Riddell, now a doctor at Scottsbluff and former Nebraska end suggests that Nebraska needs a regularly elected captain, rather than a game leader appointed each week.

What" he asks, "could a company of soldiers accomplish if at the end of each day, a new captain was appointed from the ranks to lead the men to victory? You know as well as I do that there would be no victory and the morale of the men would not be the best."

That may be true but I can testify that there has been more squad harmony under the present plan than under the old idea, in which school politics raised its ugly head.

DR. Dexter Dana King of York, is aboard, this long time follower rarely missing the long trips. He said he has put the red tie away for another year. He's been carrying this brilliantly hued cravat to every Pitt-Nebraska game since 1927 ready to put it on if the Huskers won. The tie has never been worn.

"HERE" says Lawrence Ely in a letter is a dilly.

I noticed a youngster about 11 seasons dry watching me quite sharply the noon of the K Aggie game in a local downtown restaurant.

I walked over to him and said 'Hello big fellow are you going to the game today?'

He took hold of my N sweater and asked 'Do you play on the team?'

I said no that I used to play but that I was too old now.

He remarked pertly 'Well why don't you go play for Pittsburgh?'

MINNEAPOLIS SOUTH LOOMS AS FAVORITE OVER RED AND BLACK

Kickoff Slated for 2:30 P. M. at Nebraska U's Stadium —Midgets Clash.

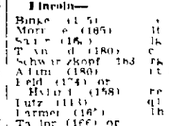
AUSTIN WILSON IS OUT

TO BE NO BROADCAST

The Minneapolis South-Lincoln game will not be broadcast. Lincoln high officials announced Wednesday. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. Thursday at Nebraska Memorial stadium.

The southside Midgets will meet the Blessed Sacrament 11 in the stadium at 1:30 before the Lincoln-Minneapolis South game.

Divested of even a mythical royal toga to wear and forced to get down to facts, Lincoln high will entertain Minneapolis South, 1936 Twin Cities champion in Memorial stadium Thursday afternoon. The game will start at 2:30 p. m.



GEORGE BINGER

Grand Island played rebel to Lincoln's king in the Third City last week 6 to 0 and left the Red and Black out in the cold so far as a state championship claim is concerned. Sioux City Central had previously stolen the Missouri Valley high school conference crown that was won by last year's undefeated team.

Boasting the strongest offense in Twin Cities history, South comes to Lincoln with the reputation of having scored more than half of its season's points on passes. The national interscholastic rules which allow a back to pass anywhere behind the line of scrimmage will not be in force. The collegiate requirement of five yards behind the line governing Nebraska high school teams.

South's two ends Bill Thompson and Bob Wallace hold the place in the Minneapolis offense that George Binger holds in Lincoln's. These flankers will be under fire from the opening whistle as both teams expect to score in the air.

Lutz at Quarter.

Plagued by injuries all season Coach Neal Mehring has had to shift his starting lineup within the past week. Austin Wilson, regular quarterback will not be able to play, and his place will be filled by Heinie Lutz who was injured in the first game of the season. Sid Held may be forced to yield his right end job to Jack Hyland because of an old injury.

The invaders will have a weight advantage in the line, and give away a few pounds in the backfield. The South squad is stock with heavy reserves however whereas the Red and Black reserves are lighter than the regulars.

Art Irgens halfback and Rolland Ring quarterback and brother of Harvey Ring of Minnesota grid fame are the workmen who do the chores in the Barnard ball carrying department. This versatile pair will be matched by Junior Hudkins Lincoln fullback and game captain and Lutz. The probable starting lineups

COLLEGE VIEW WILL FACE BETHANY HIGH

Heading for third place College View and Bethany will have it out in a Greater Lincoln league battle Thursday morning at Bethany. The kickoff will be at 10 a. m.

Bethany with its sensational comeback after losing its first two games to Havelock and David City looks a slight favorite. Coach Bob Chase has added a few razzle dazzle plays to his club's collection for past week and the game promises to be a wide open affair. The records

The game should be a fitting one to end the careers of Abbott Bradley and Badousek three of the most colorful players in the league. Abbott after a year on the B squad transferred to Bethany where he made several all-star selections only to suffer a broken collar bone that kept him out of half of this year's games. Bradley one of the shiftiest runners in the state scored 21 points against Seward two weeks ago and Badousek who tips the beam at only 132 pounds ranks as one of the best backers in the state. JACKSON, IMPERIAL IN FOOTBALL SPOTLIGHT AS GRID SEASON ENDS

Westerners Hold 19 Straight Wins—Meet Grant Eleven in the Finale.

CARDS ARE UNDEFEATED

Traditional rivalries will ignite the blaze of glory in which the state high school football season will be closed this week. A state association ruling forbids post-season games and the books will be balanced out and closed with the slim program carded for Thursday and Friday.

Probably the two most important clashes will bring together Jackson and Havelock in Lincoln and Imperial and Grant on the latter's field. These games involve undefeated teams striving for state honors, and anything can happen in either of them.

Jackson high's powerhouse not even seriously threatened all this season, will be heavily favored over Havelock, held to a 6-6 tie by Hebron not long ago. Led by the brilliant Bus Knight the Cardinals will be seeking another Greater Lincoln league championship with but little chance of a stout Engineer defense stopping them.

Imperial boasts a record of 19 consecutive triumphs and Grant points with pride to a 6-6 tie with North Platte in the first game of the season. Imperial has not been tripped in two years and has been forced to play only eleven of the territory because of its location. Coach Werner uses substitutes freely 28 boys earning letters this season. In two campaigns Imperial has piled up 439 points to 18 for the opposition.

Minneapolis Here

Lincoln high meets by far the sternest test of many seasons in Minneapolis South Twin Cities champion in Memorial stadium Thursday. Haunted by bad luck all season the Red and Black saw a final crushing blow strike while losing 6-0 to Grand Island last week when three first stringers were seriously injured. Their loss is somewhat compensated by the return of Heinie Lutz stellar back who was injured in the first game of the season and has not seen service since but the horizon appeared darker than any time this fall.

Several annual feuds will be brought up for settlement in the Southwest conference this week by way of putting an end to loop grid strife for another year. Fighting for the runnerup spot in the final standings Lexington and Gothenburg will clash on the Swede field. The Dawson county tilt will also be at stake. Cambridge will stalk Bison up McCook way with plenty of neighborly bad blood involved in the argument.

Nebraska's Own 'Tiger Jawn' Says Was Bilked Out of World's Title

Claims to Be Undefeated Past Nine Years Tho Advanced in Age.

By the Associated Press

John Pesek known to the wrestling world as Nebraska Tiger man demanded Tuesday night that the National Wrestling association recognize him as the world champion. He also requested immediate return of $1,000 he said he posted with C. C. McCrary of Tulsa, secretary of the association, as a guarantee he would participate in an elimination tournament the association was to conduct.

Pesek declared he was the only wrestler who submitted the required $1,000 before the association's deadline of Nov. 1 and on that and his wrestling record he should be the recognized champion.

He asserted he hadn't lost a match in the last nine years and in that time he has met all of the recognized leaders in the sport. He said he defeated Everett Marshall of La Junta, Colo. recognized by the Illinois wrestling commission recently as the world champion three times the last time about three years ago.

Pesek said he defeated Joe Stecher, a fellow Nebraskan and once world champion in Los Angeles in 1926 and won the title. The honor however was taken away from him the next day he said by California wrestling officials.

The 'Tigerman' declared he is anxious to meet 'any and all of the recognized leaders anywhere in the United States.' He has wrestled in many of the larger cities of the nation and despite his advanced years still goes to the mat almost once every week.

Racing dogs are one of Pesek's hobbies, and his entries have won many important events in Kansas and other states. He has been wrestling more than a score of years and close friends say he is in his late fifties.

JOHN PESEK.

PESEK EASY MASTER REBELLIOUS RUSSIAN

Ravenna Craftsman Shows How Easy It Is When You Know How

Ivan Miskoloff probably would have had more luck Tuesday night trying to wrap the whole Russian army. As it was he was only a matchbox caught in a tornado the blasting destroying tornado of John Pesek's mat wizardry. A crowd of 2,000 nearly packing the fair grounds roared as the Ravenna musician Ivan Miskoloff at every turn in their return bout taking two straight falls the first in 19 minutes the second in 4.

Pesek was as his wife liked to see him Tuesday night master of the scene at every stage and getting to Miskoloff's wonderful body as he shook it badly it took the Russian less than an hour. And Ivan was handed a mustache which he twirled carefully after the match gave Ivan occasion to amuse himself. With every twist Ivan bawled forth like a unbroken calf being compelled to drink.

Everyone but Ivan was aware of the futility of trying to out-do Pesek. Somebody probably would have told him except he couldn't understand English so he had to travel the very rocky path of experience. No one can deny that Ivan stood up under the beating very creditably for John was just about out of ways to maul him when his efforts gave out and Pesek slammed him to the mat. The second one was easy.

The semifinal was another crowd pleaser except that Joe Dusek subbing for Dick Raines didn't get licked. Ivan Managoff and the rowdy Omahan tore the ring apart for 20 minutes and the Joe Zikmund calls it a draw. The prelim event at night either for Hans Dutch Schultz the villain threw Frankie French the hero but Frankie got caught in a trap of his own making and Joe Zikmund couldn't escape the decision.

BRONCS ARE FAVORED OVER FARLEY ELEVEN

N C A C. Title at Stake in Turkey Day Scrimmage on Hastings Sod

One of the oldest college rivalries in the state will be resumed Thursday afternoon at Hastings when the Bronco meet Nebraska Wesleyan for the Nebraska college title. The opening kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Led by Art Stevenson whose extra point placekicks may be the deciding margin in the titular battle Coach Thurlo McClady's Broncs are favored to retain the title they won in Lincoln last fall by a 26-12 score.

Thursday's game marks the 13th anniversary of the battle it ended 15 years of Wesleyan supremacy on ice gridiron. Since that day Hastings has enjoyed a one game edge with five victories against four defeats. Four battles ended in tie games.

Undefeated in Loop

Both teams are reported to be in top physical condition and the squad morale is high. Hastings has lost only to St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kas. 19 to 12 while Farley's men dropped games to Augustana 2-7 and to the Nebraska B's 2 to 6. Both clubs are undefeated and untied in the N. C. A. C. loop.

BIG TEN ATTENDANCE FIGURES BEST SINCE HIGH OF 1927 SEASON

Wes Fry Mentions Huskers as Outstanding Men of Big Six League.

COACHES KEEPING BUSY

CHICAGO (AP) Football attendance in the Western conference for the 1936 season was the greatest since 1927 peak year of the sport.

Receipts probably would reach $1,750,000, said Major John L. Griffiths, commissioner of athletics, Tuesday night basing his estimates on incomplete returns. These figures, however will be about $1,000,000 below those of 1927, when receipts mounted to $2,777,600, all time high in the Big Ten. The leanest year was 1932 when the receipts dropped to $973,389.

'Our receipts this year will be about 30 percent higher than 1932 and above those of last year when the total was $1,319,100' Major Griffith said.

Now that it's all over Lynn Waldorf, coach of the Northwestern Wildcats, Big Ten champions can start worrying about next year's battles. all the Wildcats have to do in 1937 is play Iowa State, Michigan, Purdue, Ohio State, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota and Notre Dame.

Bernie Bierman coach of the Golden Gophers, will witness the Notre Dame-Southern California game at Los Angeles a week from Saturday, scouting the Fighting Irish in preparation for next year's game. Athletic directors of the Big Ten, together with football coaches, baseball, basketball, and coaches of minor sports meet here Dec. 4 and 5 to draft schedules for 1937. Wes Fry, coach at Kansas State visiting Chicago says Sam Francis Nebraska's fullback is the best in the Big Six conference. He threw at least ten touchdown passes this season and punted remarkably. Fry rates Elder of Kansas State and Frye of Mis-souri as the next best backs, with Brock, Nebraska sophomore as the best center. Jay Berwanger the outstanding All American of 1935 now a sports reporter rates Vernon Huffman Indiana's five threat quarterback as All America.

HUSKER GRID SQUAD LEAVES FOR OREGON

Nebraska U. Faces Beavers at Portland Saturday— 30 Make Trip

Nebraska U's football squad of 30 players carrying the banner of the Big Six conference left at 9:00 a. m. Wednesday for Portland Ore. where Saturday they will face Lonnie Stiner's Oregon State Beavers in the top intersectional battle of the day.

Only a handful of students and well wishers were at the depot when the Husker party pulled out for the Pacific coast but Game Captain Sam Francis and his mates were confident the Scarlet would come back with the long end of the score.

Tuesday afternoon's dust storm kept the varsity inside in their final drill on home soil but the squad is scheduled for a snappy workout at North Platte Wednesday. Thursday the team will limber up at Boise, Idaho and Friday will go thru its final paces at Portland. The team will return next Wednesday.

MARKETS AND FINANCIAL

STOCK MARKET AAGIN IS POINTING LOWER

Fears of Flareup in Europe Is Seen as Main Factor.

NEW YORK. (AP). European nervousness again tipped stocks off balance in Wednesday's market. While dividends tumbled over each other in their rush to shareholders' pockets, fears of a flareup abroad were sufficient to offset optimism over general domestic business progress.

Comforting to speculative forces, however, was the fact that a number of shares were able to tilt against the trend. After an active opening, the pace slowed and the volume was considerably restricted near the fourth hour.

U. S. Steel preference stock pushed ahead nearly 2 points to a new high, and advances up to a point or so were registered by Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Macy, Allied Stores, Consolidated Edison, American & Foreign Power, U. S. Rubber, American Locomotive, Newport Industries, Texas Pacific Coal & Oil and Loew's.

Westinghouse and Goodyear joined the generous dividend givers, but the shares did little.

In the backward division were U. S. Steel common, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Western Union, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, International Nickel, Standard Oil of N. J., Socony, Texas Corp., General Electric, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Schenley, International Harvester, Deere, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway.

Thoughts of more governmental restrictions on stock dealings brought another drop in exchange seats. A membership was sold for $85,000, off $5,000 from the last previous transaction. It was the low mark for the year to date.

Weakness of securities markets in London and Paris, brokers said, induced some offerings in the New York sector altho few of these were from what is termed "important" sources.

The downturn abroad was attributed principally to the threatened break in diplomatic relations between Berlan and Moscow. Possible repercussions in the Mediterranean over the Spanish conflict were also believed to have been an unsettling influence.

Analysis kept their eyes on the avaition stocks as international armament spending programs brought forecasts 1937 profits of the plane manufacturers will reach a record top. Growing passenger air traffic was seen as encouraging.

In line with the recent popularity of some of the amusement issues, brokerage quarters pointed to the improved outlook for department stores on the basis of the higher wage trend and the unceasing flow of national income into the hands of the public. Trade observers estimated weekly pay checks in October were at a new summit since 1930.

In addition to the payment of $7 a share on preferred, Packard Motor Car, financial sentiment was bolstered by the optimistic note for mill operations sounded by "Iron Age."

The survey said indications, based on the lift in steel prices for the next quarter, pointed to a heavy volume of demand within the next few days that will sustain ingot output at the current rate, or higher, until the end of December.

Larger orders for railroad equipment and rails were also noted as well as an uptrend in steel usage by the automobile makers and in the construction field.

Holders of the utilities expressed interest in the figures of the Edison Electric Institute showing electric power consumption for the week ended Nov. 21, established a new peak.

Initial foreign exchange transactions found sterling unchanged at $4.89¾, and the French franc .00¼ of a cent lower at 4.65½ cents.

Foreign Markets at a Glance.

LONDON. (AP). The stock market closed weak as selling pressure continued, altho some of the industrial issues recovered from the low levels of the day. Steel and tobacco shares were exceptionally weak in the early dealings and oils and mining issues also lost considerable ground. Home rails held steady but the transAtlantic section sold lower.

PARIS.—Prices for securities were mixed in the course of the bourse. Rentes were in better demand but finished the day with loss of nearly one franc. Canadian Pacific declined 14 francs and Royal Dutch reacted 28 francs to 4,460 francs.

LIVERPOOL.—A better demand prevailed for foreign wheat and rains were reported in some sections of the Argentine belt. Futures closed 1d to 1½d higher. Cotton futures closed 3 to 6 points lower, fluctuations and trading were very narrow with trade buying absorbing light hedging.

GRAIN NOTES.

CHICAGO. (AP). Bartlett-Frazier company was advised by telegram from Kansas City as follows: "We are getting increasing complaints about the effect of dry weather over a wide territory, some even as far east a sthe Missouri river, but particularly in the west half of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and in the Texas Panhandle. The wheat plant is small and backward and lack of subsoil moisture in the west has caused a very shallow root growth."

The bureau of agricultural economics estimated that commercial stocks of wheat in North American countries decreased 5,720,000 bushels last week making the total 199,239,000 bushels as against 345,496,000 bushels year ago.

Wheat received strength in trading Tuesday on reports that Italy had purchased three cargoes of Australian grain, and one of United States wheat from Pacific coast. Estimates of an export business of 750,000 bushels was a leading influence in a price rally on the Winnipeg market.

STERILIZATION BY X-RAYS

May Be Less Dangerous Than Surgery for Women.

NEW YORK. (AP). Sterilization of women by x-rays or radium is feasible and may be less dangerous than surgery, the New York academy of medicine was informed at a symposium on sterilization. This report was made by Ira Kaplan, M. D., of New York. The ray sterilization may be either permanent or temporary, by choice, but is usually permanent, Dr. Kaplan said, however, that in young women sterilization by radiation may not even be effective.

"Irradiation sterilization," he said, "is of equal worth and effectiveness with surgery, without the latter's associated mortality and morbidity." For men the rays are seldom used because male surgery is comparatively easy.

Marie E. Kopp, Ph. D., reported a study of European sterilization made for the Oberlaender foundation, showed sterilization laws are expected in the near future in Latvia, Luthuania, Esthonia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Jugoslavia, Rumania and Turkey.

LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO. (AP). Livestock buyers filled orders early to clear the yards as much as possible for the holiday, paying mostly steady prices for the liberal runs in most branches of the trade.

Hogs weighing above 210, being less numerous, got the best demand and prices for these were steady. Lighter weights sold on a steady to 10 cents lower basis. Top was unchanged at $9.85. Tuesday's drove prices of $9.49 was the highest in two weeks and Wednesday's average was near this figure.

Most yearlings and light steers were picked out of the cattle run at fully steady steady prices, yearlings bringing the $12.25 top which matched Tuesday's peak. Some beeves intended for the exposition but sorted off for slaughter were held higher. Weighty cattle, however, were slow and the undertone on these was steady to weak.

Fat lambs were mostly steady, $9 to $9.25 being paid freely while best natives were held above $9.35. Wholesale pork loin and beef carcass prices were unchanged, indicative, livestock men said, the steady basis of the meat trade despite competition with poultry at this time.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK. (AP). Cotton futures opened steady, 3 to 6 higher on trade and foreign buying. There were 62 December notices. Dec. 11.71; Jan. 11.87; May 11.61; July 11.54. Active buying by spot houses and co-operative interests held the December position steady but selling of later months against these offerings caused a setback of 9 to 11 points and after the call. There was also hedge selling in the 1937 deliveries but the offerings were fairly well taken by foreign buying. Other news was ignored and the trade continued to even up commitments in the spot position. March eased from 11.86 to 11.63, while December rallied from an early opening of 11.75 and went to 11.73. Prices generally at the end of the first half hour were 1 to 5 points net higher. The weekly weather reports said cotton picking was nearly completed except in some eastern lowlands of Arkansas and portions of the Carolinas. Liverpool reported a small market.

Steel Output.

NEW YORK. (AP). Advances of $1 to $4 a ton on steel products early this week were preceded by an increase in volume of anticipatory buying, resulting in a slight bulge in steel operations in some districts, "Iron Age" said in the weekly review of the industry.

The average for the country as a whole was about 74½ percent, up a half point from last week, the trade journal said, adding that indications point to a heavy volume of buying within the next few days that will sustain ingot output at its present rate, or higher, until the end of December.

"The announcement of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., which initiated the price advances, was followed by the statement that other steel companies would adopt the same quotations," the review said.

"Buyers are given only until the last day of November to enter orders at present prices for December shipment, the new prices for first quarter going into effect Dec. 1 in fig iron the advances take effect immediately.

"It is the intention of steel mills to take only as much business at current prices as can be rolled and shipped during November but it is quite possible the volume of buying may necessitate the carryover of some of the lower priced tonnage into January. However, the higher operating costs of steel companies will make them more exacting in restricting purchases than they have usually been at the time of a price advance.

"Railroad equipment orders and inquiries have spurted, and there will be a large volume of rail orders, possibly as much as 500,000 tons, before the effective date o fthe new rail price, Dec. 1. The automotive industry has been ordering more freely the past week and a larger number of active projects in the construction field are in the market."

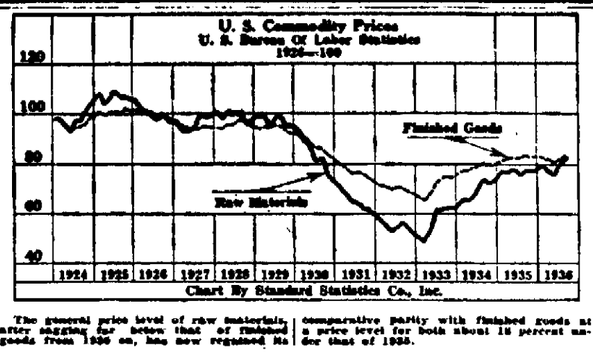
The immediate effectiveness of pig iron prices raises the "Iron Age" pig iron composite $1 a ton to $16.73, the highest since December, 1926. Composite prices of finished steel and scrap are unchanged.

Treasury Receipts.

WASHINGTON. (AP). The position of the treasury Nov. 23: Receipts, $13,186,664.46, expenditures, $26,289,921.20, balance $1,661,833,184.29; customs receipts for the month, $27,972,017.02. Receipts for the fiscal year since July 1, $1,598,375,430.67; expenditures $2,794,415,318.71, including $1,128,976,046.54 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,196,039,888.04; gross dept. $33,806,902.33 91, a decrease of $1,433,733 under the previous day; gold assets, $11,142,218,294.75.

Paris Exchange.

PARIS. (AP). Three percent rentes 78 francs 30 centimes; 4½ percent rentes 79 90. Exchange on London 105.15. The dollar was quoted at 21.48¾.



The general price level of raw materials after slagging far below that of finished goods from 1926 on, has now regained its comparative parity with finished goods at a price level far both about 15 percent under that of 1926.

NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK. (AP). In a market of typical pre-holiday pattern curb stocks moved within a narrow swing. Utilities and metals showed a few modest gains, oils sagged and industrials were mixed.

In the inactive department advances of 1 to around 2 were established by Pepperell Manufacturing, Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing and Youngstown Steel Door. Aluminum Co. of America also achieved a substantial gain. Utilities Light & Power "A" and Sunshine Mining and Lake Shore Mines had buyers at fractionally improved levels.

CRUSADING BUSINESS ENJOYING A BOOM

Editor Chicago U Student Daily Takes Out After Big Ten Schools.

CHICAGO. (AP). The Daily Maroon, University of Chicago student newspaper, said Tuesday that all except "two or three Big Ten schools use various undercover methods of subsidizing athletes" and urged discontinuance of football activity in the Western conference unless the alleged practices are curbed.

The Maroon, in an editorial, said the university's future course should be determined by the attitude conference officials adopt toward the Wisconsin "Reynolds plan" for open subsidization of athletes, and the alleged "undercover" methods, at its meeting in Chicago Dec. 4-5.

The Phoenix, campus literary magazine, last week urged a similar course and suggested to Head Coach Clark Shaughnessy, whom it called a "good, capable coach," that he seek a place where material is more plentiful.

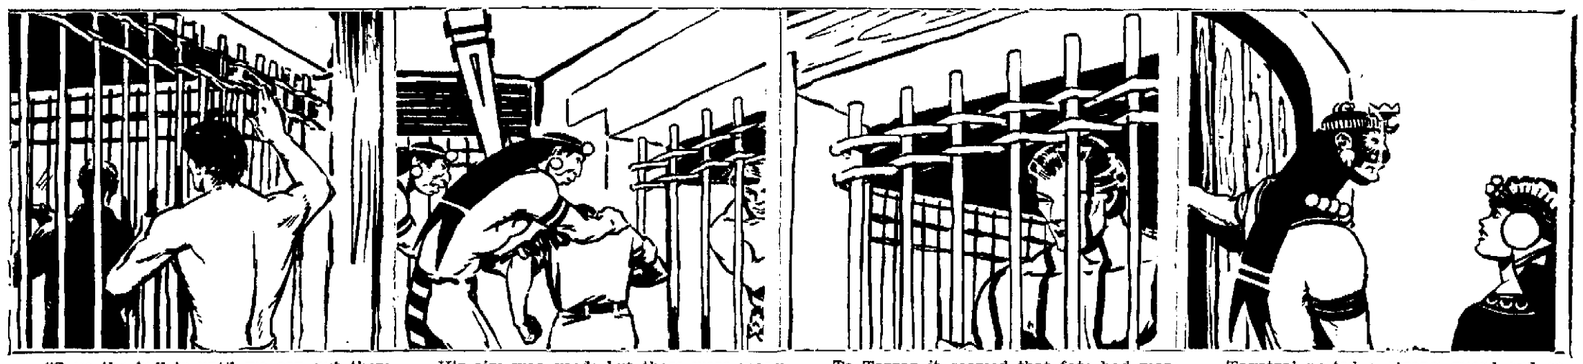
TARZAN AND THE MAYAN GODDESS—By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS.



"Save the bullets until we can put them to better use," shouted Tarzan; "it does no good to kill a few of these devils now." But D'Arnot was so maddened by memories of the tortures the monsters had inflicted on him that his mind did not register Tarzan's cries.

His aim was good; but there were many more monsters to take the place of every one he killed. And on they rushed, heedless of death. At last D'Arnot's ammunition was exhausted. But before the monsters seized him, he hurled the gun at their hideous heads.

To Tarzan it seemed that fate had marshalled all its forces against him and his friends. As each new ray of hope arose, it was extinguished. But there was still Queen Zalya. Sometimes she hated him; again she looked on him with favor. Which feeling was stronger?

Togatzal posted a strong guard and returned to his quarters. There, to his surprise, he found the queen awaiting him, her face wearing a troubled frown. "If your majesty comes to plead for the prisoner called Tarzan," he snarled, "you are wasting your time!"
